Instructions for registration as given by the dean of faculty are as follows:

1. Get registration cards 29 minutes before appointment from (a) registrar's office if bill is paid or (b) auditor's office if bill is not paid.
2. Deplete on courses with aid of adviser at appointed time.
3. Get section assignments from the Office of Dean of Men in the Great Hall.
4. Return to adviser for final registration.

The penalty for late registration is now a preclusion, according to the current College Catalogue.

Rudolf Serkin
Builds Excitement Through Piano Mastery

By MARILYN WOODBERRY
Rudolf Serkin, skilled Bosnian with the rare gift of total concentration, has completely enthralled his audience. His fingers flew over the keys as though he were playing a conversation with his instrument. The music soared forth from his fingers and was picked up by the harpist and bass player, who played the difficult passages with grace and ease.

The second part of the program began with a faster, dance-like version of the Schumann concerto. Mr. Serkin played with great passion and intensity, creating an atmosphere of excitement through his complete mastery of the instrument. The audience was left in awe of his talent.

Sue McGechin Mourns Marmaduke, Pet Monkey

New Yorker Likes Winter Sports; Enjoys Music, Traveling and Reading

"Marmaduke was my pride and joy," sighed Sue McGechin, the attractive brown-eyed secretary of Mortar Board and publicity editor of the Colonial Echo. She was the only remaining member of the group of monkeys that her uncles brought from China. She had him for five years and after her uncle returned they had to give him to her.

Born in Mamaroneck, N.Y., Sue attended Mamaroneck High School and was president of the Honor Council. She also acted in the capacity of representative and was president of the Honor i-

Gibbon monkey which Sue's uncle brought back from China. She served as assistant in the history department, participates in varsity and intramural sports, and works in the organization of the D.D. Club.

Children's Stories
Sue's hobby is writing children's stories, which she reads to her nephews, "who is the only one person who will listen to her," she said. "I also enjoy writing humorous poems and I can't stand people who don't have a sense of humor," she confided.

"I like lots and lots of mow and I'm crazy about skating and sledding," announced Sue. She also enjoys reading, good music, and playing the piano. She has traveled to Canada, Mississippi, Florida, and New Orleans. "The thing that really bothers me in people who walk!"

Major History
A history and English major, Sue plans to study journalism here, but when the course was dropped because of lack of professors, Sue began her history courses. At a vacation, Sue wants to write a book about human and social history and, thinks that her history will be a good background for this. The idea is to what she will do after she graduates in June. Sue said, "I'll probably just stay in a good line somewhere which, of course, will give me an opportunity to see all of my college friends!"

College Women's Club Honors Rudolph Serkin

Immediately following the piano concert by Rudolf Serkin, Monday night, the College Women's Club held a reception for the performer in the Dodge Room and foyer of the College. Miss J. L. Lewis, Jr., who is in charge and ex officio president of the organization, was present at the reception.

The receiving line included Dr. Harold W. Pettit, president of the college, and Mrs. A. E. Peirce, vi-

In Dormitories, Houses Students Hibernate

"Stay out! Do Not Disturb Women at work!" Even if a person is your best friend you must observe these signs during the pre-exam period. No matter how earnest students may be, during this critical period they exams find them staying up till all hours of the night studying till 2:00 a.m. or trying to memorize the disintegration series of uranium.

The wiser ones have studied since the beginning of the year but even then they say that "it’s remarkable how hard it is to learn and easy how fast it is to forget." About two weeks before exams, students start studying, the library begins to gleam competing with the dorm lobbies as the study center for upperclassmen. About 90% of the students spend the remainder of the week working and they work hard. Many spend about a month behind in their work and the rest give up in despair during this time. There is a lot to do. Everybody goes to their dorms then during this time but in case the professor gives some helpful hints on how to pass the course.

Reading periods finds the dorm assembly quite empty as students hang around the campus to figure out just what they’re going to do. Many rooms one finds students staying up two or three hours studying, but the first week of the semester and five hours sleep for the student. Despite the fact that some professors advise the students to go to bed and try to get up the next day, before an exam, they stay up till all hours frantically cramming and trying to keep themselves awake.

The three methods commonly used in studying are trying to memorize the text, coffee, and having a cold shower, and work done before reading period but half the students seem to be about a month behind in their work and the rest give up in despair during this time. There is a lot to do. Everybody goes to their dorms then during this time but in case the professor gives some helpful hints on how to pass the course.

Rudolf Serkin Charms His Admirers With Vivacious Smile and Personality

By LAURIE PRITCHARD

Brown-eyed Rudolf Serkin won the admiration of his audience Monday night with his pianistic ability and sense of humor. Following his concert, he charmed William and Mary’s faculty with his vivacious personality. He charmed a contingent of students from various classes and the campus audience, the maestro shook his hand; but, when asked if he enjoyed his audience, he said, "I most certainly did." He then went on to say that the students were all very appreciative. Mr. Serkin also took the trouble to make a sign of the "X" for the letter that he said was the most frequently asked question, "How do you remember it?"

Gantt and Disservo Lead Spiders Against W-M in Conference Tilt

Williams and Richmond, two of the more important basketball teams in the country this season, will meet this week in what promises to be a tough conference tilt. The game will be at 8:00 P.M. tonight in Richmond. The Spiders have won their last six games, while Richmond has lost two of their last three. The game promises to be a good one, with the Spiders leading the conference with 10 wins and 4 losses, while Richmond is tied with the other conference leaders at 8-4.

SPORTS SPYEL

BY TOMMY SMITH

Considering the inexpenience of the basketball team and that this is the first year that the Spiders have played in a conference, it's not surprising that they have done well. In fact, they have done so well that they have been invited to play against some of the top teams in the country. This game against Richmond is a key one for the Spiders, as it will help determine their standing in the conference. If they can come out on top, it will boost their confidence and give them a good start in the conference.

The Richmond team is a strong one, with several experienced players. They have a good mix of seniors and juniors, which should help them to play well. The Spiders will have to be at their best to beat Richmond, and they will need to play a solid game on defense to keep the Richmond team from scoring.

It should be an exciting game, and fans are sure to enjoy watching it. The Spiders are a young team, but they are making strides, and they are sure to improve as the season goes on. This game will be a good test of their abilities, and they will be sure to give it their all. It's sure to be an exciting game, and fans won't want to miss it.
Jane Oblender, Aquatic Star, Holds Many Athletic Awards

By BETTY COMBRUE

The State of Pennsylvania has furnished Jane Oblender with a share of top-notch athletes in the persons of Frank Reagon, Bill Tilden, and many others. Jane Oblender, freshman star for the William and Mary varsity swimming team, may well be counted among these athletes. "Oblie," as she is fondly called by her classmates, was awarded the outstanding athletic scholarship in Lancaster, Pa., in 1946. The scholarship was given to her on the basis of her swimming ability, because, "it gives me a big appetite so I can eat large meals," started swimming at six years of age and has been swimming for ten years. Oblender's success in swimming has been rewarded with a scholarship of $250. She is a member of the William and Mary varsity swimming team and has already set a school record in the 50-yard freestyle event. During the 1947-48 season, the William and Mary team had a remarkable season, winning all home meets and placing second in the conference meet. Delta Delta Delta Gives Scholarship Aid Award

Alpha Mu of Delta Delta Delta, the local chapter of the national sorority, has established a scholarship of $200 to be awarded in June, 1946, to any woman student attending William and Mary who meets the qualifications. The award, a gift, is not limited to be used for any specific educational purpose, and the student will be free to use it as she sees fit. The scholarship will be awarded to the student who, in the opinion of the judges, has shown the greatest promise of achieving success in her chosen field of study.

William & Mary
Go-Round
BY FRED FISCHER

At first glance, I can find but one criticism of our new point system. It has got too many loopholes. No points are allowed for participating in that ancient and despised William & Mary tradition of the juke box. The point system, I believe, was designed to prevent students from taking on more than they could handle efficiently. That is to say, time consuming positions and activities. I realize that in the past the point system required that all students in such a group-washers as ours, one cannot but agree that we should either allow three points for men (and women who wash their own socks), or get the laundry to do them again.

IF THEY DON'T STICK
Last week, I got a shirt back from the laundry which had not been despatched of a single button. "Huh-huh," I shouted as I put it on, "the war is over!"... and, as I searched for a clean pair of socks, I realized that my joy had been premature. Sadly, I realized that my date was at 7:30 and that it would take me a lot of time to wash a pair, the shoes were closed and... It was much too cold to do without them. Picking up an armful of dirty socks (the pile of soiled socks is so big that I'm always close to it), I threw them on the wall. Among those that did not stick to the wall I picked out and unpaired to wear on the date.

TREAD QUESTILY
The following week, the laundry list, carefully omitting to include any socks and handkerchiefs. Once in a while, one will accidentally get into the bag, and it always costs to buy a new, unpaired. Very pointed to the fact that we have a system which makes it impossible to do anything about it.

MAIDS MAKE KILLING
I can come up with another interesting fact (1942) of the day that the laundry would do our socks and handkerchiefs for us. I imagine that the modern machinery has so improved in those departments that they could do a much more efficient job of it than a student. It's like knowing that the laundry is going to wash your clothes for you. If it is because of financial reasons, I'd like to point out the fact that some of our more enterprising dormitory maids are making a killing by washing some of the boys' socks and charging fairly heavily for the service. I'm sure that any added expense to the laundry will be gladly borne by such students, because I don't think that it would add much to the cost of operating the laundry.

It is reason why the laundry cannot begin to do socks and handkerchiefs for the students includes a reference to the fact that the laundry is unable to get the work done. We have a number of hypotheses current as to the cause of the alleged coffee in the cafeteria. There are as follows:

(a) They didn't really care at all; it's more chicanery.
(b) They haven't washed the coffee pot since they opened the cafeteria.
(c) They can read the instructions that came with the coffee pot.
(d) Whatever it is, we can't possibly have a decent cup of coffee.

Sincerely,

The Editor
