Although more prominently known for its rigorous academic environment, student athletes proved that the Tribe could also achieve on the court, field, track and in the pool. A number of new and repeat individual Colonial Athletic Association awards allowed Tribe student athletes to demonstrate their ability to not only defeat opponents, but to also achieve state and national recognition.

Hard work allowed a number of teams to reach and win Championship titles. With the men’s basketball team making it to the CAA Tournament, Women’s Track and Field winning their ninth CAA Championship, and the football team ranking in the top 20 of the nation, Tribe athletes showed that excelling outside of the classroom was the usual as well.
