By Matt Poms
Flat Hat Sports Editor

The final score told the story. As the winning minutes of the College’s season-opening real contest against Virginia ticked down, what had once been a hostile Scott Stadium crowd of 34,100 was reduced to a fraction of that number. They were chastened predominantly in the southwest corner of the field, dondeed out in the orange sunbeams and ties of the Cavalier faithful, but in the green and gold of the Tribe. And they were going crazy.

For the first time in 23 years, an upset Tribe squad defeated their larger in-state rivals in a game that will resonate far beyond Williamsburg. As the College jogged off the Cavaliers’ home field to celebrate with their fans, the clock hit zero with the scoreboard locked on a decisive 26-14 final score.

“We are incredibly proud of the effort our players put forth tonight,” Head Coach Jimmye Laycock said. “We showed spirit, and our players were extremely smart in the decisions they made. We played very hard, and it showed a lot of heart in us.”

The victory was the first for the Tribe over an FBS school since upsetting Temple in 1998 and the first over Virginia since a 41-27 win in 1980.

The game was sealed with two minutes and 20 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter and the College running a 19-14 lead. As the Cavaliers attempted to put together a last-ditch drive to salvage their season opener, redshirt freshman quarterback B.W. Webb, in his first career start for the Tribe, stepped in front of a Jameel Sewell pass, ripped the ball from a Virginia receiver, and raced untouched into the Tribe end zone.

The interception was Webb’s third of the night, the defense’s seventh through the season.

Inside

A calendar listing this month’s job workshops, webinars, career fairs and graduate school advisories

New page 3

Space for the future UConn Career Center but already bookmarks between front of the Sadler Center

See CAREERS page 3
BEYOND THE ‘BURG

Enedy University is specifying one term to be used for quarantine as a result of the heightened number of severe H1N1 cases on campus. Students were told that all students are instructed not to go to class. The university has more than 200 presumptive cases of H1N1 disease, Enedy’s Student Health Center Director Michael Hayes said.

“We don’t have a way to test for H1N1 in Georgia right now, so we make the diagnosis of influenza A and it’s a presumptive H1N1,” he said.

The campus community will need to focus on prevention and treatment of H1N1 rather than wait for a vaccine.

2 A study by Oxford University researchers revealed that rats fed a high-fat diet show a worsening of their physical endurance and a decline in their cognitive abilities within nine days.

“We found that, when switched to a high-fat diet from their standard low-fat feed, showed a surprisingly quick reduction in their physical performance,” Dr Andrew Murray, leader of the study at Oxford University said. “After just nine days, they were only able to run 50 percent as far as or a bit slower than those that remained on the low-fat feed.

The research hopes to provide insight on the human body’s own reaction to high-fat diets.

3 The University of Louisville is instituting a campus-wide smoking ban starting in November. The university sees it as a health issue, but some are opposed. The policy includes faculty and staff and will go into effect in November.

“It will be eliminated completely except in the designated smoking areas Nov. 1,” University of Louisville President Steve Wiguang said. “On June 1, we will also be phasing out the designated smoking areas, so there will be no smoking on campus by then.”

Wiguang said the University is looking out for everyone’s health and students, smokers and non-smokers alike, in implementing the ban.

4 A class at Elon University recently challenged the claims by Red Bull Energy Drinks that their energy drinks improve performance, concentration and reaction time.

Elon associate professor Matt Carole and his students spent two years testing Red Bull’s claims. Their study, which was published online last June and appeared in the latest issue of the Open Nutrition Journal, concluded that the effects of drinking Red Bull was so different than those due to any other caffeine-enhanced beverage, such as coffee, in improving reaction time in participants. In fact, test participants ended up incurring the placebo effect.

Iranian institutions crack down on protesters

Students who protested the disputed June election face punishment from colleges

By MAGGIE REEB

The Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei and President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad of Iran have called for crackdowns on the country’s universities.

After the June 12 Iranian presidential election, many students took to the streets in protest of what they felt to be an unjust election. Protests continued for weeks, leaving the country divided.

Khamenei has recently blamed the civil unrest on the science and humanities faculties of Iran’s universities. He recently called for evaluations of departments that he believes undermine Islam.

According to the Mehr news agency, a presidential panel is already at work trying to open new universities.

Two recent Muscarelle's Cheek's deaths

David Alan Brown, a former Italian Renaissance artwork at the National Gallery of Art, and Fred Wilson, a conceptual artist, from a bachelor’s degree to eventually earn a Ph.D. of low-income students and the number of students who move on from college to graduate school.

According to the Mehr news agency, a presidential panel is already at work trying to open new universities.

Two recent Muscarelle's Cheek's deaths

David Alan Brown, a former Italian Renaissance artwork at the National Gallery of Art, and Fred Wilson, a conceptual artist, from a bachelor’s degree to eventually earn a Ph.D. of low-income students and the number of students who move on from college to graduate school.
The Sadler Center's main entrance has been blocked by construction of the Career Center, slated to open in 2010.

Sun park — the flat hat

College's medical amnesty policy to include drugs

Students must invoke amnesty "proactively" for cases involving illegal drug use. They may still suffer consequences if they invoke medical amnesty and face disciplinary action if they invoke alcohol amnesty alone. The policy is something of a triumph for the SA. According to Brown, the SA members and the Dean of Students have "struggled" with the policy for a long time. Brown said: "It's a very common sense expansion of the alcohol amnesty," he said.

According to Ruzic, there was little opposition to full drug amnesty in the SA. Though some senators asked if full medical amnesty might send the wrong message, "there were some in the SA who were very concerned about students who viewed it as condoning that sort of behavior," Ruzic said. Moreover, the SA legislation urging the administration to adopt full medical amnesty passed unanimously last April.

This most recent, successful initiative was passed after discussions between SA members and the Dean of Students. Brown '10 and SA Undersecretary of College Policy for Drug and Alcohol Reform Will Sinnott '11, developed a proposal for the new policy. The policy was then passed unanimously by Associate Dean of Students Dave Gilt.

According to Brown, Gilbert would rather see students seek medical attention than not do so for fear of a student conduct violation. Brown was pleased with the role the SA played in updating the College's medical amnesty policy. "I don't think [full medical amnesty] would have been enacted that year or in coming years without the SA," Brown said. “[Dean Gilbert] hadn’t been thinking about it until it was too late.

The new policy is something of a triumph for the SA. According to Brown, the SA is often handicapped by its lack of influence in the administration. "It’s really frustrating not having any authority to change things at the school," stated one of the bills like that don’t actually change the policy because we don’t have authority over student conduct.

Neither Brown nor Gilt forecasts the policy having an immediate effect. According to Brown, a student at the Career Center has not died of a drug overdose in at least the past two years. The policy is nevertheless a significant achievement.

"We’ve done all we can in the policy because it’s extended to where it covers pretty much everything," Brown said. "Going to full amnesty from limited amnesty certainly puts William and Mary on the forefront of drug policy.

Daniel Shilling could not be reached for comment.

Economic downturn expands opportunities at Career Center

The administration believes that the Cohen Career Center will be instrumental in providing support to both undergraduates and graduates in addition to unemployed alumni.

The center, made possible through a $10 million donation from Sherman Cohen ‘38, could double the amount of traffic the services receive. Shilling has hope for the future of the Cohen’s alumni. "They’re just caught right now, and they’ll come out of it and life will go on."
Sigma Pi's Journey

The change in the byzantious policy has many fraternity’s prospects of maintaining special interest housing. Organizations that struggled to fill vacancies under the old policy found the new standards unattainable.

"Sigma Pi anticipated a membership review, [and] the anticipated change was that they would not have enough members to fill the spaces," Arseneau said. "They didn’t think they would have enough members to be compliant… so they didn’t turn it in a house in March."

For Sigma Pi, the loss of on-campus housing was a more significant setback in an already tumultuous year.

"We had a lot of stuff we wished had gone on," Sigma Pi President Brian Apkarian ’11 said. "We got a lot of troubles, we had a lot of sanctions going against us [and] we need a lot of money to Live Life. We had a membership review that lacked out of 12 people. The only place we really had to go was up."

While the decision to give up on-campus housing was difficult, fraternity members are doing their best to make the transition a smooth one by testing homes off campus and coordinating their on-campus living situations.

"We have some off-campus housing, which definitely helps," Apkarian said. "All of our members who live on campus live near each other, and that helps in terms of everything. If I need to talk to one of them or all of them, they’re right there."

Cooper said fraternity brothers have consistently used the blockhousing option in the past to maintain the sense of community created in a fraternity house.

"I think the best thing about fraternity life is being with your brothers," Cooper said.

The move off campus has created other complications for fraternities. Members who once had informal interactions with familiar William and Mary Police Department officers must now create new connections with a different police force.

"The truth of the matter is you’re dealing with a different police presence," Apkarian said. "We didn’t want (William and Mary) police because we had a good relationship with most of them. They always seemed cool. It’s rougher now because we’re in an environment where we don’t know the police."

In addition to tensions relationships with the Williamsburg Police Department and new neighbors, many fraternities also face the possibility of declining membership. Without easily accessible on-campus housing to display their fraternities, members are facing cash more difficult than in previous years.

"Recruitment has definitely been affected," Apkarian said. "It’s a lot different. You don’t have the unit anymore, which is where a lot of the freshmen flock to, so you have to create a different environment. When you’re off campus, you’re shortening your rush list."

A Move On Campus

Not all of the College’s fraternity are facing problems with recruitment and housing; however. In the customs that struck many Greek organizations last spring, Delta Chi, actually moved on campus for the first time in their history at the College.

"We’ve never had special interest housing on campus since we were chartered in 2002," Delta Chi President Alex Guzman ’11 said. "We’re in Unit G with Kappa Alpha… Sharing a unit hasn’t been done before."

Their agreement came out of necessity — Kappa Alpha didn’t have enough resident members to keep their housing, and Delta Chi wanted to move on campus. Guzman said the two fraternities decided to share housing to satisfy both of their needs.

"Being off campus, we kind of started exploring oncampus housing (in November), but realizing we wouldn’t have enough members for a unit," Guzman said.

"Kappa Alpha didn’t have the members to fill a unit either, but they wanted to keep their housing. They were on campus since they were founded, when the units were constructed."

Cooper said that the College’s one-size-fits-all policy makes it difficult to bring the fraternities back on campus. Until then, some fraternities must reconsider being on-campus organizations or being off-campus fraternities.

"The College’s not going to support us," Cooper said. "The College is not going to support the frats. There is no money from the College. There is no money from the College."

The short-term solution requires either retrofitting the College’s alcohol policy. "A lot of brothers want to use different police forces. It’s a double-edged sword," Apkarian said. "It’s a double-edged sword."

Financial concerns and residency requirement shortfalls caused many fraternities to vacate their homes this year.
Some students from across the pond angered by anti-social healthcare

LUCY JAMES, ASSOCIATE OPINION EDITOR

“Don’t talk about politics.” That’s what they warn you at international conferences, but I find myself talking again and again about long-winded words or my quirky British slang, wherever I go. I have been surrounded by people who view the British political system as an imperialist outlook in which they have to stay home. I managed to stay up till 1 a.m. last November to watch the U.S. presidential election and partied with students from the EU who were discussing the implications of President Barack Obama’s healthcare plans. I’m more than happy to be an outsider.

I have always been drawn to the comfort of a welfare state. I was the first person in my family to attend college, and my hand held the budget and my medical costs still not fully covered.

I was a Great Lakes kid who grew up in the streets. But when it comes to reaching the age of 50 and being able to afford the health care I need, I find myself in a situation that I cannot afford to go without.

I am 20 years old and have been suffering from a chronic illness that requires me to take daily medications. However, because of the stringent Medicaid requirements in my state, I was not able to receive the care I needed. I decided to apply for coverage under the Affordable Care Act, and I was approved.

I knew when I applied to study in America that I was bearing the comfort of a welfare state.

I am not a doctor, but I have a good understanding of the healthcare system in America. I have seen firsthand how the system is broken and how many people are left without access to basic healthcare.

I do not wish to disillusion you — I do not wish to run over that perfect world. But I also know that some of you elected Obama because you told me America can’t do it. It’s a lie. We are living in a time where our interests lie with the backbone of our society.

I am writing this letter not as a student, but as someone who has been through the system. I have seen firsthand how much it matters to me, and I want you to understand how much it matters to me. I want you to hear me. I want you to understand that this is a crisis, and we need to do something about it.

Everyone knows what Labor Day means — the end of another summer, just as Memorial Day represents the beginning. However, it seems that every Memorial Day, we are bombarded with pictures of the real and the virtual. It is a time to remember. It is a time to remember that we are working women and men who continually work at making the United States a strong and prosperous nation, not once-in-a-lifetime furniture.

We must recognize that our interests lie with the backbone of our society. This is a time to reflect on what we have accomplished and what we still need to do.

LUCY JAMES, Assistant Opinion Editor

The staff editorial represents the opinion of The Flat Hat. The editorial board, writers, editors, designers and website managers do not represent the opinion of the College of William and Mary. The opinion section is determined by the student opinion editors, Mike Hilder, Ashley Morgan, Matt Penn and Andy Henderson. The Flat Flat welcomes submissions to the Opinion section. Letters to the editor must be 200 words and columns to 700 words. Letters, columns, graphics and cartoons reflect the view of the author only. Email submissions to Opinions@flathatstudent.com.

A call for Labor Day, 365 days a year

RACHEL ANDERSON AND AXLE LOCH, PLAY AND GUEST COLUMNISTS

According to the Department of Labor, states with higher rates of unionization have lower rates of poverty and crime.

Everyone knows what Labor Day means — the end of another summer, just as Memorial Day represents the beginning. However, it seems that every Memorial Day, we are bombarded with pictures of the real and the virtual. It is a time to remember. It is a time to remember that we are working women and men who continually work at making the United States a strong and prosperous nation, not once-in-a-lifetime furniture.

We must recognize that our interests lie with the backbone of our society. This is a time to reflect on what we have accomplished and what we still need to do.

LUCY JAMES, Assistant Opinion Editor

The staff editorial represents the opinion of The Flat Hat. The editorial board, writers, editors, designers and website managers do not represent the opinion of the College of William and Mary. The opinion section is determined by the student opinion editors, Mike Hilder, Ashley Morgan, Matt Penn and Andy Henderson. The Flat Flat welcomes submissions to the Opinion section. Letters to the editor must be 200 words and columns to 700 words. Letters, columns, graphics and cartoons reflect the view of the author only. Email submissions to Opinions@flathatstudent.com.

A call for Labor Day, 365 days a year

RACHEL ANDERSON AND AXLE LOCH, PLAY AND GUEST COLUMNISTS

According to the Department of Labor, states with higher rates of unionization have lower rates of poverty and crime.

Everyone knows what Labor Day means — the end of another summer, just as Memorial Day represents the beginning. However, it seems that every Memorial Day, we are bombarded with pictures of the real and the virtual. It is a time to remember. It is a time to remember that we are working women and men who continually work at making the United States a strong and prosperous nation, not once-in-a-lifetime furniture. It was the work of average Americans, through labor unions, that brought us the 40-hour week, child labor laws, the eight-hour work day and the concept of minimum wage.

They are the true heroes of our democracy. Thus Labor Day is meant to remember and celebrate the Americans who build our country. Americans who worked hard and brought us a welfare state.

At the end of the day, it’s not about the size of the government, but what you want the government to do. You want the government to do for you. You want the government to be a tool for your use. You want the government to be a welfare state for you.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.

We need a government that will listen to the people, that will listen to the voices of the people, that will listen to the needs of the people.
By NICHOLLE LIEBSTEIN
Flat Hat Staff Writer

Walking in to your 150-person psychology lecture on Friday afternoon, you choose your normal seat in the second row. Five minutes later, a fellow classmate walks in sweating and coughing. She takes the seat next to you, wiping her nose with a few squares from a roll of toilet paper she carries. You move down four seats, leaving a wide gap between the two of you. It’s not paranoia; it’s the beginning of swine flu season at the College of William and Mary.

Already operating on many college campuses nationwide, the H1N1 virus, commonly known as the swine flu, is making the pre-season a public health spectacle. In an attempt to keep the student body healthy, the College has created a new webpage dedicated to flu prevention, established a vaccine plan and distributed hand sanitizer to many buildings on campus. Despite the administration’s informative warnings, the sense of alarm was not shared by all of the student body.

“It’s like when that tropical storm came through,” Jessica Taylor M.A. ’10 said. “The clouds were never for just students being afraid than anything else.”

Jennifer Margherito ’11, who worked in a hospital with a swine flu case over the summer, was more concerned ever catching the flu on her flight to her study abroad program in Italy than catching the flu here at home, but she recognizes the need for the College’s actions.

“I can understand why the administration is doing it. It’s close quarters here. People get sick from common colds in the dorms,” she said.

In a recent survey of 180 universities by the American College Health Association, 2,000 swine flu cases were identified. Some schools have even resorted to designating specific spaces for infected students. At Emory University, a dorm was set aside as a temporary quarantine, coined “chill zone.” The swine flu’s raising the alarm this year because it is a new strain of the influenza virus, as very few people, especially young people, have immunity to it.

“I’m not too concerned about it,” Ginny McLane ’11 said. “I understand that it’s killing more healthy people than it should be, which is why people are concerned, but it’s still a very small fraction of the overall population.”

Elizabeth Rice ‘13, who attended a summer program at the College, went after the three on-campus cases of swine flu occurred, is also unconcerned.

“I feel like the media has misreported the nature of the disease and caused unnecessary hysteria,” she said. “Some of my friends are nervous about an outbreak, but I think that stems from confusion and hype by the media. William and Mary has been taking careful precautions to avoid an outbreak, and students should be mindful, but not too scared of this disease.”

In addition to health providers, pregnant women and young children, the Center for Disease Control and Prevention cites very young adults ages 18 to 24 as one of the groups most vulnerable to the swine flu. In an email to students last week, the College’s Vice President for Administration Ann Marie McQuade recommended that students get both the seasonal flu vaccine and the H1N1 shots.

“You could be considered getting it,” said McLane. “I’m in the ‘at-risk’ age group but I don’t have any of the pre-existing conditions — asthma, allergies, that kind of thing — that predispose people to fatality.”

The CDC is currently studying the negative effects of the new vaccine, most notably any signs of the Guillain-Barré disease, a neurological disease that killed 25 Americans who were vaccinated during the 1976 swine flu outbreak. Many students are still weighing the risks associated with the swine flu as well as the vaccine for it. However, according to Director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases Anthony Fauci, there is no question that the flu is more dangerous than the vaccines.

“Today, the pandemic is a reality,” Fauci said.

See HEALTH page 7

Swine flu epidemic sparks prevention methods on campus

By LAUREN BILLINGSLEY
Flat Hat Staff Writer

McLaren Johnson may be wearing stylish black shoes to disguise the fact that she’s out of her feet, but she certainly has no trouble managing up consecutively as the two of us went for a midday coffee date. Articulate, gracious and energetic, this governance major at the College of William and Mary makes it immediately clear that she has an absolute commitment to social justice and civil rights throughout the world through the political process. Political TV shows, quotes and photographs with political leaders pepper McLaren’s Facebook page, and when we talk, she speaks about themes she has studied and dreams of politically driven films. But before long, this ambitious senator is relaxing, rolling up the sleeves on her white button-down shirt, and setting politics aside to talk about extensive reproductive rights, thinking outside the box and Christian Bale.

You are the recent founder of Students’ Petersburg Initiative for Community Engagement at the College. What has been cool part of your community service experience?

This past Martin Luther King Day, we did this overnight service and involving the community. And nailed in baseboards and stuff. It was great. He was my husband then, and he was really cool. We talked about the importance of doing community service and involving the community. I’d have to work my way up, but essentially the office of president. It’s been my career goal for a really long time. And I have it seems for political things and every people I love politics and community organizing, and that’s sort of the path that President Barack Obama took. Is there a political figure in history that you especially admire?

I love Bill Clinton because being reading a lot about his style of leadership is so inspiring because he didn’t have a lot of confidence in himself, and yet he was able to do so many because he put a lot of work into it. He knew what his weaknesses were, and he put a lot of effort and time into working to alleviate what he did wrong things he didn’t have a lot of that stuff that he was forced into. And it really affirms that kind of thing. It’s a visionary who he said as a future leader in our country should go based on his values and history and other leaders and stuff, and I think it actually want you to lead have to

See JOHNSON page 7

Gov major aims for presidential politics

That Girl

By LAUREN BILLINGSLEY
Flat Hat Staff Writer

Mellaney Garden is a well-known comedian on the comedy circuit, and her YouTube videos have over a million views. She has performed at colleges around the country and is a frequent contributor to comedy websites.

What is your favorite thing about comedy?

What is your favorite thing about comedy? That is where I get most of my inspiration. I enjoy the feeling of being on stage and being able to make people laugh.

Have you ever faced any challenges as a comedian?

Yes, I have had to face some challenges as a comedian. I have had to work hard to build my own fan base and get people to come out to see my shows.

What advice would you give to other comedians who are just starting out?

My advice to other comedians who are just starting out is to keep practicing and improving your skills. Don’t be afraid to take risks and try new things. Also, be prepared to work hard and put in the time and effort to succeed in the comedy business.

What is your next big goal as a comedian?

My next big goal as a comedian is to perform at larger venues and to continue to build my fan base. I would also like to do more writing and produce my own material.

Thank you for your time.

See JOHNSTON page 7

Burnham incorporates audience

By CAITLIN SHOEKATER
The Flat Hat

Comedian Bo Burnham returned to Williamsburg, despite an unplanned first experience. During his Saturday night performance at the Brutus Lupus Memory Ball, he mentioned his seventh grade field trip to Busch Gardens. The amusement park was closed after a man hung himself from Apollo’s Chariot, a popular rollercoaster at the park. His comments were met with laughter and applause. After the show, Burnham took pictures with audience members and signed autographs. His performance was well received, and he plans to return to the College in the future.

THAT GIRL

Gov major aims for presidential politics

By LAUREN BILLINGSLEY
Flat Hat Staff Writer

Mellaney Garden is a well-known comedian on the comedy circuit, and her YouTube videos have over a million views. She has performed at colleges around the country and is a frequent contributor to comedy websites.

What is your favorite thing about comedy?

What is your favorite thing about comedy? That is where I get most of my inspiration. I enjoy the feeling of being on stage and being able to make people laugh.

Have you ever faced any challenges as a comedian?

Yes, I have had to face some challenges as a comedian. I have had to work hard to build my own fan base and get people to come out to see my shows.

What advice would you give to other comedians who are just starting out?

My advice to other comedians who are just starting out is to keep practicing and improving your skills. Don’t be afraid to take risks and try new things. Also, be prepared to work hard and put in the time and effort to succeed in the comedy business.

What is your next big goal as a comedian?

My next big goal as a comedian is to perform at larger venues and to continue to build my fan base. I would also like to do more writing and produce my own material.

Thank you for your time.

See JOHNSTON page 7

Burnham incorporates audience

By CAITLIN SHOEKATER
The Flat Hat

Comedian Bo Burnham returned to Williamsburg, despite an unplanned first experience. During his Saturday night performance at Brutus Lupus Memory Ball, he mentioned his seventh grade field trip to Busch Gardens. The amusement park was closed after a man hung himself from Apollo’s Chariot, a popular rollercoaster at the park. His comments were met with laughter and applause. After the show, Burnham took pictures with audience members and signed autographs. His performance was well received, and he plans to return to the College in the future.

THAT GIRL

Gov major aims for presidential politics

By LAUREN BILLINGSLEY
Flat Hat Staff Writer

Mellaney Garden is a well-known comedian on the comedy circuit, and her YouTube videos have over a million views. She has performed at colleges around the country and is a frequent contributor to comedy websites.

What is your favorite thing about comedy?

What is your favorite thing about comedy? That is where I get most of my inspiration. I enjoy the feeling of being on stage and being able to make people laugh.

Have you ever faced any challenges as a comedian?

Yes, I have had to face some challenges as a comedian. I have had to work hard to build my own fan base and get people to come out to see my shows.

What advice would you give to other comedians who are just starting out?

My advice to other comedians who are just starting out is to keep practicing and improving your skills. Don’t be afraid to take risks and try new things. Also, be prepared to work hard and put in the time and effort to succeed in the comedy business.

What is your next big goal as a comedian?

My next big goal as a comedian is to perform at larger venues and to continue to build my fan base. I would also like to do more writing and produce my own material.

Thank you for your time.

See JOHNSTON page 7

Burnham incorporates audience

By CAITLIN SHOEKATER
The Flat Hat

Comedian Bo Burnham returned to Williamsburg, despite an unplanned first experience. During his Saturday night performance at Brutus Lupus Memory Ball, he mentioned his seventh grade field trip to Busch Gardens. The amusement park was closed after a man hung himself from Apollo’s Chariot, a popular rollercoaster at the park. His comments were met with laughter and applause. After the show, Burnham took pictures with audience members and signed autographs. His performance was well received, and he plans to return to the College in the future.
Behind closed doors

To the swine flu, students and faculty have been advised to wash their hands frequently and use hand sanitizer where available. Hands frequently, cover coughs and sneezes and don’t touch the nose or mouth. Instead, you can prevent the spread of the flu, whether they get sick or not.

The precautions do not protect you against the swine flu. Also, you might drink a little more orange juice now and then. It’s all the more reason not to hoard it, and to enjoy it when you can.

The swine flu vaccine requires two shots, to be given four weeks apart. The vaccine is made for decades, and the College has launched an informational website on campus mid-October.

Attendence page 8

Surviving the sexual desert

Maya Horowitz

flat hat 61a columnist

I hate to say it, but it’s even worse to think about it, but sometimes there is a time in your life when sex isn’t appropriate. Sometimes, you have to put your sex life on hold. For example’s sake: This column is not about those who abstain from sex entirely, it’s about sexually active adults who have decided to stop having sex.

There can be a variety of reasons for temporary abstinence, or as I like to call it, deferring sexual transmission. You might be in a monogamous long-distance relationship, or you’ve just gotten out of a relationship, and you’re not ready to be intimate yet. Or you’re waiting for a sexually transmitted infection to clear up. Or you’ve just been on a sex spree, and you’re welcoming some down time.

Whatever the reason, you will probably find yourself in this position at least once in your life, if not at least once in the College of William and Mary. So, how do you deal with a dry spell, without going wild?

The first step to temporary abstinence is the first step in general: Acknowledge that you are a sexual being with dirty, filthy, wonderful desires. Before you are even stopping yourself from intercourse doesn’t mean you can stop yourself from introspection.

Be honest with yourself. If I am feeling this way on campus, I immediately imagine us on a beach with our kids in the mountains somewhere enjoying dead-ends. Flirting can be a fun and rewarding experience if you’re mentally

The second step is to manipulate others. Don’t allow yourself to get goosed by the human hand. We all need sexual release in one way or another.

Time limitations produce creative students

Students construct unique plays in 24 hours

By Nicole Lisstrom

Theater battles all across campus spread the majority of Sunday in bed. They’re entitled after going almost 30 hours without sleep, in some cases, in order to participate in the 24-Hour Play Festival sponsored by Alpha Pi Omega, the junior theater fraternity at the College of William and Mary.

The reason why one would want such a unique, extremely small group of people to create a show in such a short amount of time is unclear. They may be specialists that one would not know unless one was in the fraternity.

This year’s productions were no exception. The only requirement the writers had to follow when creating their shows was a first and last line. The resulting plays included everything from the story of a panda who witnesses only the recreation of a lifelong friendship. This freedom helps doves students to the competition.

“It’s all about who can produce great theater with so little time,” Russ said. “I mean, you ask anybody after it’s over, they will tell you they’re so tired, but it was so fun. And that really is true.”

The festival is not a show exclusively for theater majors. Freshman participants and non-theater students are always welcome.

“This particular event is a great way for freshmen and transfer students to meet up on campus, and it’s great for freshmen as well, because everyone can’t be bored,” Russ said.

Jarrett Levy ’13, an actor in the festival, agreed. “I think decreased college student being interviewed in order to determine whether whether or when to go hoarse or hell in the play “Influence”.

This was my first audition at William and Mary. It was such a great way to get my feet wet. Daniel Sembler ’13, an exchange student from Nottingham, England, was interviewed by news the festival. He directed the play “The Wife is Not a Fan,” the story of a man attempting to choose between his wife and an electric line.

There was a theater meeting last week to discuss the schedule and I heard about [the festival] there,” he said. “I’ve directed before, but I’ve never done anything like this.”

The festival will run for a reason. If something can be done a three way tie: Christian Johnson, who was interested in participating. Edward Williams, a first-time participant and music business; I need to stop that.

If you were starring in a romantic comedy, what would you choose to act out? And if you were starring in a romantic comedy, what would you choose to act out?

This is a three way tie: Christian Johnson, who was interested in participating. Edward Williams, a first-time participant and

What’s your favorite quality? What’s your favorite quality? What’s everyone’s favorite quality? What’s everyone’s favorite quality?

Okay. This is a three way tie: Christian Johnson, who was interested in participating. Edward Williams, a first-time participant and

Okay. This is a three way tie: Christian Johnson, who was interested in participating. Edward Williams, a first-time participant and

Okay. This is a three way tie: Christian Johnson, who was interested in participating. Edward Williams, a first-time participant and form or another. Plus, you wouldn’t want your genitals to feel left out from the rest of your organs. In the case of temporary abstinence, it becomes more important that your masturbation is meaningful. This may mean setting up candles and taking the entire night to enjoy your own company or just making an effort to make self-love a little more loving.

Many people have told me that they feel ashamed after they masturbate. They get a feeling of regret and emptiness. To these people, and those like them, I say let that feeling go. Remind yourself often that your diddling is for a good cause and that there’s no shame in fondling yourself once in a while.

The last step, and perhaps the most important, is to understand why you are abstaining. If you have a reason that you can justify to yourself, you put yourself in the best position possible. If you are unclear as to why you’ve chosen this path, you are likely to stray into the world of sexual decadence. As with masturbation, you must remind yourself that it’s alright to do this. Taking a break is a common and healthy occurrence. Not every time in our life can be a sexfest.

To keep yourself in good spirits, always remember that there is an end in sight. As you struggle through your sexual desert, keep the oasis straight ahead. Remind yourself that when you do start having sex again, it’s going to be incredible, like a bite of a fresh peach after a hunger strike.

Maya Horowitz is the Flat Hat sex columnist. She loves lavender scented candles from Bath & Body Works and jazz music playing softly in the background.

Plays produced despite odds

FESTIVAL: AbsTiNeNce

Shawn, I signed up, too.

Greg Benson ’11, a writer in the festival, had to work with a limited cast. “I had an initial idea going in that needed five people,” he said. “We normally have around 30 people audition for the festival, this year we had twelve.”

Benson even wrote himself and the director into the play “Sunny Side Up.” He also asked Behm for help.

“Greg’s a friend of mine,” Behm said. “[He] texted me at one in the morning and asked if he could write me into the show.”

Despite the difficulties that this year’s festival has posed, Behm was incredibly pleased with the overall result. “This has been stressful but good, any endeavor like this is worth it,” she said.

Dry spell brings learning

ABSTINENCE: from page 7

Plays produced despite odds

FESTIVAL: AbsTiNeNce

Shawn, I signed up, too.

Greg Benson ’11, a writer in the festival, had to work with a limited cast. “I had an initial idea going in that needed five people,” he said. “We normally have around 30 people audition for the festival, this year we had twelve.”

Benson even wrote himself and the director into the play “Sunny Side Up.” He also asked Behm for help.

“Greg’s a friend of mine,” Behm said. “[He] texted me at one in the morning and asked if he could write me into the show.”

Despite the difficulties that this year’s festival has posed, Behm was incredibly pleased with the overall result. “This has been stressful but good, any endeavor like this is worth it,” she said.

INFO SESSION

Thursday, September 10

James Blair Hall

Room 205, 6:30 PM

Full salary and benefits. Relocation funding available. All majors.

www.teachforamerica.org

TEACH FOR AMERICA
SPORTS IN BRIEF

MEN’S SOCCER
Tribe down Campbell with good in eighth minute
The Tribe (3-3-1) defeated host Campbell 3-2 Saturday, scoring three goals in the last 14 minutes for the victory. The first came in the 75th minute, followed by an equalizer two minutes later, then senior midfielder Peter Thomas extended the lead to 2-0. The Tribe then scored a key last minute before redshirt freshman midfielder Colton Thomas scored the game-winner in overtime on a ball played by redshirt senior forward Nick Vornadore. Liberator's shot was only the second of the game for the Tribe — and a megaball off the defender hit the back of the net, the referee on the back side appeared inclined to call it off goal for an off-sides violation. The BYU faithful and Duke were ready to make their case with equal intensity, and as Day was about to step out of the field, the call was made. The game ended 1-0, a 0-0 draw and a point of honor. "We had a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

"The game was a lot of possession, and had a lot of chance," said Day of the BYU attack. "But our defense played well, and behind them [Junior goalkeeper], the ball was made. The game created."

By JAMIE LAMBERT
Flat Hat Sports Editor

Who’s on TV

By the numbers

At 17

Straight losing seasons for the Pitts burgh Pirates, the longest streak in North American sports history by the four major sports.

Women’s Soccer
College rolls Utes, takes down Cougars
Tribber betters record to 3-1 with 2 road victories

The College (5-3-1) returned to Busch Field Monday to shut out Appalachian State, winning 3-1. App State has only been held to a goal in the last two matches and its last goal was scored against Louisiana.

The Tribe opened up Friday against Appalachian State, winning 3-1. Harry Burchett scored on a header, making it 1-0 in the 7th minute for the Tribe. Before the half, Burchett scored an unassisted goal to make it 2-0. After a scoreless second half, Burchett secured his third goal of the season, making the final score 3-1. The Tribe then advanced to the Southern Conference finals. The Tribe went a goal in 88th minute and then added two more goals in the 90th minute. The Tribe's offense overwhelmed Appalachian State throughout the game.

The Tribe opened up Friday against Appalachian State, winning 3-1. Harry Burchett scored on a header, making it 1-0 in the 7th minute for the Tribe. Before the half, Burchett scored an unassisted goal to make it 2-0. After a scoreless second half, Burchett secured his third goal of the season, making the final score 3-1. The Tribe then advanced to the Southern Conference finals. The Tribe went a goal in 88th minute and then added two more goals in the 90th minute. The Tribe's offense overwhelmed Appalachian State throughout the game.
FOOTBALL

Cavalier collapse

ANATOMY OF AN UPSET

Historic win for Tribe over U. Va.

“We were in cover two, coach always told me to watch the play and the guy came right into my area,” Webb said. “It’s almost like a dream. Everything happened at the right time.”

The play punctuated a night that belonged firmly to the Tribe defense. The College fielded Virginia to a mere 200 yards of total offense, snatching four interceptions and recovering three fumbles. Thirteen of 16 Cavalier possessions ended in either a three and out or a turnover, and Virginia coach Al Groh was forced to use three different quarterbacks in an attempt to generate any semblance of offensive momentum.

That dominance allowed Laycock to utilize a cautious offense for most of the game. The coach was content to settle for field goals, eat up the clock, avoid turnovers and wait for the Cavaliers to make mistakes.

“I didn’t want to put us in a bad position, so I played it a little safe,” Laycock said. “We were going to be smart, we handled the rain, ran the trap in some situations. I had a lot of confidence in our defense, and we have a pretty good passer.”

The Tribe got off to a tepid start as Virginia got on the board only three minutes into the first quarter. Cavalier starting quarterback Vic Hall scrambled 34 yards around the right side into the end zone for the score. After that point, the Cavaliers would not even threaten to put Virginia ahead.

But after that, the Tribe offense steadily plucked points from the Cavaliers. Senior kicker Brian Pate made good on a 34-yard field goal, quickly putting his team up 7-0. After the College took the lead, Laycock was content to settle for field goals, eating up the clock, avoiding turnovers and waiting for the Cavaliers to make mistakes.

“It was a plan that left the College with a signature win to start its season,” Laycock said. “We were in the right place at the right time, and we made plays when we needed to.”

The coaches prepared us very well, we lined up well, and we just played,” Archer said. “We are in cover two, coach always told me to watch the play and the guy came right into my area, “It’s almost like a dream. Everything happened at the right time.”

The redshirt freshman was far from the only standout for the Tribe.

Senior defensive end Adrian Tracy was a force, repeatedly penetration the Virginia backfield while recording ten tackles. Linebackers Jake Trotman and junior Evan Francis were equally active, combining for 16 tackles and recovering three fumbles between them while shutting down the Virginia spread.

F. Hockey: WINS TWO AT HOME

“Senior quarterb R.J. Archer, a native of Charlotteville, looked sharp on the Tribe’s lone fourth down play. “The circumstances behind the Tribe’s 26-14 upset win over U.Va. Saturday night may have been perfect — it was the debut of a new spread offense for embattled coach Al Groh’s Cavaliers, and the Tribe’s defense was the hungrier team and got to it first. On top of the turnovers, the Tribe held Virginia scoreless for the final 37:29 and got a huge stop on fourth and one midfield with the Cavaliers charging.”

After a shaky start, senior kicker Brian Pate blocked three consecutive kicks as the College built a 19-14 lead. From there, it was left to the defense and Webb’s heroics to clinch the win.

The redshirt freshman was far from the only standout for the Tribe.

Senior defensive end Adrian Tracy was a force, repeatedly penetration the Virginia backfield while recording ten tackles. Linebackers Jake Trotman and junior Evan Francis were equally active, combining for 16 tackles and recovering three fumbles between them while shutting down the Virginia spread.

F. Hockey: WINS TWO AT HOME

“Senior quarterb R.J. Archer, a native of Charlotteville, looked sharp on the Tribe’s lone fourth down play. “The circumstances behind the Tribe’s 26-14 upset win over U.Va. Saturday night may have been perfect — it was the debut of a new spread offense for embattled coach Al Groh’s Cavaliers, and the Tribe’s defense was the hungrier team and got to it first. On top of the turnovers, the Tribe held Virginia scoreless for the final 37:29 and got a huge stop on fourth and one midfield with the Cavaliers charging.”

After a shaky start, senior kicker Brian Pate blocked three consecutive kicks as the College built a 19-14 lead. From there, it was left to the defense and Webb’s heroics to clinch the win.

The redshirt freshman was far from the only standout for the Tribe.

Senior defensive end Adrian Tracy was a force, repeatedly penetration the Virginia backfield while recording ten tackles. Linebackers Jake Trotman and junior Evan Francis were equally active, combining for 16 tackles and recovering three fumbles between them while shutting down the Virginia spread.

F. Hockey: WINS TWO AT HOME

“Senior quarterb R.J. Archer, a native of Charlotteville, looked sharp on the Tribe’s lone fourth down play. “The circumstances behind the Tribe’s 26-14 upset win over U.Va. Saturday night may have been perfect — it was the debut of a new spread offense for embattled coach Al Groh’s Cavaliers, and the Tribe’s defense was the hungrier team and got to it first. On top of the turnovers, the Tribe held Virginia scoreless for the final 37:29 and got a huge stop on fourth and one midfield with the Cavaliers charging.”

After a shaky start, senior kicker Brian Pate blocked three consecutive kicks as the College built a 19-14 lead. From there, it was left to the defense and Webb’s heroics to clinch the win.

The redshirt freshman was far from the only standout for the Tribe.

Senior defensive end Adrian Tracy was a force, repeatedly penetration the Virginia backfield while recording ten tackles. Linebackers Jake Trotman and junior Evan Francis were equally active, combining for 16 tackles and recovering three fumbles between them while shutting down the Virginia spread.

F. Hockey: WINS TWO AT HOME

“Senior quarterb R.J. Archer, a native of Charlotteville, looked sharp on the Tribe’s lone fourth down play. “The circumstances behind the Tribe’s 26-14 upset win over U.Va. Saturday night may have been perfect — it was the debut of a new spread offense for embattled coach Al Groh’s Cavaliers, and the Tribe’s defense was the hungrier team and got to it first. On top of the turnovers, the Tribe held Virginia scoreless for the final 37:29 and got a huge stop on fourth and one midfield with the Cavaliers charging.”

After a shaky start, senior kicker Brian Pate blocked three consecutive kicks as the College built a 19-14 lead. From there, it was left to the defense and Webb’s heroics to clinch the win.

The redshirt freshman was far from the only standout for the Tribe.

Senior defensive end Adrian Tracy was a force, repeatedly penetration the Virginia backfield while recording ten tackles. Linebackers Jake Trotman and junior Evan Francis were equally active, combining for 16 tackles and recovering three fumbles between them while shutting down the Virginia spread.

F. Hockey: WINS TWO AT HOME

“Senior quarterb R.J. Archer, a native of Charlotteville, looked sharp on the Tribe’s lone fourth down play. “The circumstances behind the Tribe’s 26-14 upset win over U.Va. Saturday night may have been perfect — it was the debut of a new spread offense for embattled coach Al Groh’s Cavaliers, and the Tribe’s defense was the hungrier team and got to it first. On top of the turnovers, the Tribe held Virginia scoreless for the final 37:29 and got a huge stop on fourth and one midfield with the Cavaliers charging.”

After a shaky start, senior kicker Brian Pate blocked three consecutive kicks as the College built a 19-14 lead. From there, it was left to the defense and Webb’s heroics to clinch the win.

The redshirt freshman was far from the only standout for the Tribe.

Senior defensive end Adrian Tracy was a force, repeatedly penetration the Virginia backfield while recording ten tackles. Linebackers Jake Trotman and junior Evan Francis were equally active, combining for 16 tackles and recovering three fumbles between them while shutting down the Virginia spread.

F. Hockey: WINS TWO AT HOME

“Senior quarterb R.J. Archer, a native of Charlotteville, looked sharp on the Tribe’s lone fourth down play. “The circumstances behind the Tribe’s 26-14 upset win over U.Va. Saturday night may have been perfect — it was the debut of a new spread offense for embattled coach Al Groh’s Cavaliers, and the Tribe’s defense was the hungrier team and got to it first. On top of the turnovers, the Tribe held Virginia scoreless for the final 37:29 and got a huge stop on fourth and one midfield with the Cavaliers charging.”

After a shaky start, senior kicker Brian Pate blocked three consecutive kicks as the College built a 19-14 lead. From there, it was left to the defense and Webb’s heroics to clinch the win.

The redshirt freshman was far from the only standout for the Tribe.

Senior defensive end Adrian Tracy was a force, repeatedly penetration the Virginia backfield while recording ten tackles. Linebackers Jake Trotman and junior Evan Francis were equally active, combining for 16 tackles and recovering three fumbles between them while shutting down the Virginia spread.