The dollars to pay for the death of Indian and German soldiers will be enough to buy out the New York Times, the Hearst papers, the Wall Street Journal, the New York American. The rich jaws of the newspapers, however, will be wide open to the surrender of the last and the worst. Only the death of the last and the worst will bring to the rich men of the newspapers the satisfaction of the last victory. Dean Landrum Attends Modern Language Meet (Ve Landrum, Dean of the Modern Language Department, and Professor of French, arrived in Boston Tuesday night to attend the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association. There was a discussion on the relation of the modern French education to the national educational system, the teaching of French in the secondary schools, and similar topics. A very interesting point of view was given on the idea of teaching French as a means of economic advancement, which is the tongue of to-day's Germany.

The president of the association, Mr. T. Craig, spoke next for a thorough and excellent study of foreign languages. The German group was working for a separate fund by keeping the instructors to the Institute, to be used for the advancement of the International Symposium. A very interesting discussion on the idea of teaching French as a means of economic advancement, which is the tongue of today's Germany.

University of Idaho recently adopted a new plan of study for the undergraduate students in the French department. A large number of students have been entered in the French Department and a greater number of students have been enrolled in the French Department.
