

Dear Alexander

June 5) 1793.

Sister Molly and myself wrote to you, intending to send the letters by your Cousin Charles, but as Capt Lymburn sails first, we send them by him, so there will be two chances if one should be taken. For that reason I am afraid, we shall not hear from each other as often as we could wish,

Your Father says he shall write you a letter that will ease your hart, as he expects to send you a draught from Col Burrell,

Your old acquaintance Bob Taylor was expelled from Colledge last week in consequence of a duell fought between him and Jack Randolph, which perhaps you may have heard of as it happened in January, In my other letter I told you of Birth Marriage Death & and as there is so little variety in this dull place have nothing more to tell you then that we are all well, so with love and respects from all your friends concludes your affectionate

Lucretia Craig

London

Doct<sup>r</sup> Alexander Galt