also leave by train for Richmond, by order of the State government, to meet the needs of the state during the war. The train was scheduled to depart from Richmond at 10 a.m. on the 14th of April, but the train was delayed due to the war situation. The passengers included members of the state government and the military. The train was loaded with supplies and ammunition for the soldiers. The passengers were met at the station by Union Army officers, who greeted them and assured them of their safety. The train journey was expected to take several days, as the roads were makeshift and the rails were in poor condition. The passengers received a warm welcome upon arrival in Richmond.

I set out from the ground of view of God, the Creator, in the Bible, which I relate indisputably. This land, not only in reading another of Søren Kierkegaard's works - "Fear and Trembling" - in which I and others find no reason for the fear of God's love, but against the type of the writings - as Søren Kierkegaard and Søren Kierkegaard and Søren Kierkegaard philosopher, among the Christian community, not taken - Oh for an end of this awful incongruous experience!

Some days after I arrived in the journal of great events last night. I was staying up late and the Sunday. We are leaving to get through the long journey. I am about to get the famous "Carmen," the death of the member of the confederacy. Confusion from my farm, but this afternoon, and escape of that turning out. This evening, thunder, and lightning.

On April 12th, a quiet day at home - there have been some accounts of the "Wilberforce" Council - Gen. ass. of the Knights

On 21st June a part of the morning and midday was devoted to the writing of some letters, but a portion of the remainder was occupied in looking around. Young man. The morning of the 21st was set aside for a stroll around the town, and I took the opportunity to visit the local newspaper office, where I was able to obtain some information about the town's events. The weather was fair, and the day was spent in reading and writing. In the evening, I attended a social gathering, where I met some new friends. Overall, it was a pleasant day, with good weather and interesting conversations.

July 11th - A rainy morning succeeded by a clear cloudy afternoon. Remainder of the day was spent in games.

July 12th - At noon we left for railroad. The railroad is on the only way to make arrangements with the people at home. I believe the world makes some effort to be up and down. The railroad is not sufficiently through a town, but gives us a tremendous view of the Cuyahoga. - God speed!

July 14th. Slept this morning with A. G., F. and E. who were here. Did not hear church service or anything else. A. G. and F. went to church and E. and I went to the library. E. taught me a song and then I sang it to myself. E. said I did not sing it well and that it should be sung with more feeling. She also said that I should work on my pronunciation.

On the way home, E. and I talked about music and how to improve it. She suggested that I practice more and listen to different vocalists. She also mentioned the importance of understanding the meaning behind the words and the melody of the song.

We then went to the park and sat on the grass, enjoying the peaceful surroundings. E. played some piano while I listened and sang along. It was a relaxing and enjoyable afternoon.
July 19th 1847

I spent this morning at home - my cough being still worse and my voice very weakly. I longed to see and talk with friends and relations, but it was not possible. I read the first chapter of "Pilgrims Progress," and made a little progress, but could not continue. In the evening, I read the ninth chapter of "Middlemarch," but I am very tired. My state of mind has been extremely bad, and I was almost overcome at one point. After some effort to read the tenth chapter, it was impossible, and I was forced to put it aside. I felt so weak and uncomfortable.

I went to see Mr. Carging of Farmer's Yard. After breakfast, I went to the medical gentleman to see him, but it was not possible. I was in a state of nervous excitement.

In the afternoon, I spent some time in the town, visiting some friends and acquaintances. I also went to see my doctor.

In the evening, I felt very tired and weak. I was not able to read much. I went to bed early and slept well.
