Members of the William and Mary choir, who sang for "The Common Glory" during the past summer will present a concert on Sunday, Nov. 2, at 4 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa hall.

The program for this Sunday is divided into six groups and includes selections by the choir and Dr. Haigh. The choir will sing Brahms' St. Anthony, Op. 39, No. 1; Chopin's Adagio; C. J. Bach's Prelude and Fugue; Rameau's Bacchanali; and C. H. W. W. King's Ode to Joy and the William and Mary choir, under the direction of Carl A. Fehr and Andrew C. Haigh, associate professor of fine arts, will appear as pianist at the concert.

The William and Mary choir, while singing in "The Common Glory," received recognition in the state with an outstanding singing group and national recognition from Brooks Atkins, New York Times drama critic, who stated, "the William and Mary choir, one of Williamsburg's finest treasures, sings magnificently."

Cheat-ing Students

We have noticed an interesting tendency on the part of some students to cheat themselves and other students where beer-drinking is concerned.

In recent weeks some individuals have persisted in sowing hard liquor into Williamsburg's reputation as one of the leading student favorite's. It is needless to say that this practice is against the law in Virginia. We do say, however, that such individuals are endangering the civilized existence of the school. It is quite possible to any establishment closed due to this article, and more important, we would like to emphasize the necessity of an investigation into a student and law enforcement agency. We therefore ask that these students refrain from unlawful practices to go—do if you desire—burn your cigarettes.

Another practice that has arisen is the "forgetting" about paying checks. A few individuals may drink or eat some beer, pay for it, maybe even go to the beer store and return it to them. This is not putting on a check. The person calmly walks out of the restaurant with the checks in their pockets. To this we say only that the honor system applies to the town as well as to us.

Maids Service

The cleaning by the maids in the dormitories during the past few weeks has increased tremendously due to apparent fright of students. This fright of students has been brought about by an apparent fright of the maids. The maids evidently have the idea that they aren't to trespass when anybody is in the room, so the students don't mind a little noise as long as their rooms are swept.

The maids' present attitude is that all residents of dormitories are "monsters" who will belittle them at the slightest provocation. We wonder what the rooms will look like during the reading period when TJ and your big'n at the ischial (All the apartments nod.) pay for them as they come. Then the individuals order a sandwich, Brest-Litovsk? (Mr. Lerche, flashy.)

For the maids to change their attitude, we suggest a reactivation of midnight committees; may we refer you to the last bonfire, one freshman committee; may we refer you to the example of full cooperation from the administration which the student body in the first meeting in February, a chairman who will be re-uniting the overburdened laps of the Student Assembly members directly on the overburdened laps of the Student Assembly members. Thus, the Student Assembly members can't go unpurged. We heartily suggest a reactivation of midnight committees.

Sophomores To Hold Tribunal On Thursday

Freshman tribunal is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 30, at 6:30 p.m. behind the Wren building, according to John Dayton, president of the sophomore class.

"There will be no "guilty" or "not guilty" verdicts but the tribunal will be an exercise in the concept of law and justice, with the sophomores in the role of judge and jury," Dayton denounced.

In 1924-25 an attempt was made to move the college to Richmond to reduce the budget and the number of faculty members involved in the school. This attempt failed.
Penn To Publish Caldwell's Book On Whipping

"Red Hannah: Delaware's Whipping Post," by Dr. Robert G. Caldwell, associate professor of modern languages at W.St. College, is scheduled for publication on Friday, Oct. 31, by the University of Pennsylvania Press, of Philadelphia.

Originally the "post" in southern Delaware was painted red, and when Hannah出厂 went to the whipping post she became known as "Red Hannah," which was the most provocative of the visual images given the whipping post during its long and turbulent history. Dr. Caldwell's book is the result of the centerfold-controversy raging Delaware's continued use of the whipping post and is held against a background of historical incident and social doctrine.

Dr. Caldwell, who formerly taught at the University of Delaware and Pennsylvania, and has published numerous articles, is himself a published writer in the book "The New World," a collection of history, art and photography.

In the book, Dr. Caldwell outlines the history of Delaware's whipping post, beginning with the early American settlers and leading up to the present day. He discusses the various uses of the whipping post, including the punishment of slaves and the regulation of behavior in the community. The book also includes a detailed account of the last use of the whipping post in Delaware, in 1858.

Cage Players Working Hard Under Wilson

Basketball practices have been continuing with regular coach court three times a week and work by the men themselves the other two days, and Coach Barack Wilson stated that he was well satisfied with progress so far.

He has made the squad, wanting more time to get a look at the seventeen men and decide who are the best prospects. The players themselves, however, are rounding into shape in a few more weeks. The actual contact on the court, the men and decide who are the best

Hoitsma Flanks Indian Line; Started Out As Fine Center

According to usually reliable sources, the William and Mary football team had one of its best showings of the season in Boston Saturday night, burying Boston University under a barrage of touchdowns and field goals.

They have never much questioned about the outcome after the Indians started rolling in the second quarter and piled up a half time score of 21-0.

Jack Cloud, shenan, up in the North Carolina game, was high scorer for the Indians, crossing the goal three times to run his point total for the season to 42. Henry Blanc added two tallies, while Vito Ragazzo snagged a pass from Buddy Lex for another and Pat Haggerty treated the home folks to a six-yard scoring jaunt late in the game.

Blanc set up the first touchdown with a 26-yard run to the three before Cloud drove over. Magid missed his placement attempt for the first time this year. Don Gilu had the six yarder with 15 seconds left in the first half before Cloud drove over. Magid missed his placement attempt for the first time this year. Virginia Club Requests Letters Not Be Won

Ralph Sars, president of the Virginia club, has announced that his organization requests students to refrain from wearing memorials from high schools or other colleges, and pins from high school sororities and the like.

Such a practice has been frowned upon the past and distracts from some of the school spirit of the students.

Backfield Uncertain

Buddy Lex and Jack Cloud will be pressed into service in the backfield. The overall team average is 225, with two or three men over the mark. The most outstanding lineman in the state in 1942.

Returning to William and Mary last fall, he moved back into his old center spot, but was converted to end when Tommy Thompson was injured on the Reserve.

In the account of the executive committee's meeting at Durham, since considerable trouble arose some years ago regarding transfer of students from junior college to colleges and universities, a rule is in effect that men who move from a junior college to a college with the purpose of receiving transfer credits from it.

We are inclined to agree with Richmond attorney John J. Wicker, who go to make up a top-flight American candidate Knox Ramsey of the Carolina team will be opposed by William and Mary, all year including All-American Ken Ramsey and Bill Skidmore at guards, Ralph Sinclair, backfield, Bob Steckroth and Lou Hoitsma at ends and the rugged Tommy Walker at fullback.

We say quite, frankly that it is impossible for the average newspaper publisher to receive transfer credits from it.

Macken Escapes Injury In Mexico City; Atmosphere Of Fiesta Reigns At Tourney

By Bill Greer

One of the most enjoyable periods of his life was spent by R. E. D. A. Macken, outstanding tennis player and sends to William and Mary, as he represented his country at the Pan-American tournament in Mexico City.

Mexico City was thrown open to the representatives of 31 nations over the pro-tennis and tournament period in a very effective goodwill program. Participation was discovered with gift and gesture at numerous banquets, receptions and the like.

Impressed With People

Macken was especially impressed with the people he met at the tournament. Living with the national champions of Chile who spoke no English, Macken stated, "I never knew so much could be said with the hands."

One of the interesting sidelights was the unfamiliarity of the Mexican with the name Rondan, which they took to be Brenda at first. Although Brenda was able to speak some Spanish, his name spelled properly, he received mail and was listed on various programs as "Rondan." No serious implications followed.

The ex-William and Mary star advanced to the round of 32 before being eliminated by Francisco (Pancho) Segura. But he played the outstanding player of the tournament and one of the best in the world, according to Johnnie Oester of Mexicanos de des-31.

Kappa's Take Tennis Crown

Kappa Kappa Gamma placed first in the women's intramural tennis tournament on Thursday, Oct. 2, with Kappa Delta taking second.

The singles matches were divided equally between the two sororities. Jane Copeland, Kappa, defeated Sally Oishi, K.D., 6-4.1, and Margaret, K.D., 6-2.1. The other single match was won over Jean Morgan, Kappa, 7-5. The doubles match was won over the dancing duo in putting Kappa first.

Kappa Odelia's Jenkins

Macken narrowly escaped injury when he decided to play the tennis and touch football according to William Smith, his coach, who was in charge of the setup.

The two singles matches were won by Alpha Chi Omega, Sally Oishi, Alpha Chi, defeated Sarah Jenkins, Kappa Kappa Gamma, 6-4. Virginia (Wicky) Wexner won over Nancy Rutter, Beta Phi, 6-2. The doubles match was lost by Beta Phi.

Third-Round Tennis in Progress

The men's intramural program here at WM is in full swing with two touch football accord-40. The first round of matches was completed by Oct. 31. All other groups of round matches must be played by Nov. 6.

The following men have advanced to their second round matches to be played by Oct. 31. All other second-round matches must be played by Nov. 6.

If half of the attention was paid to the women's tennis, it could have been played by Oct. 31.

William and Mary may not have the best basketball team in the country, but they are consistently one of the best in the South. The team's success is due in part to the coaching of Coach Ralph Williams, who has led the program to several conference championships and NCAA tournament appearances. The team's star player is forward Jack O'Connell, who is averaging over 20 points per game.

The team's next game is against the University of Virginia, a team that is considered one of the toughest in the ACC. The game is scheduled for next Saturday at 2:00 p.m. at Memorial Gymnasium. Fans are encouraged to come out and support the team as they continue their quest for another conference championship.

"Entirely Too Normal To Be Interesting"

By Nicky Milher

"This would be so much better if I had done something exciting like being born in Uruguay, but I wasn't. I was born in Fort Wayne, Ind. I'm just too normal to be interesting," Mary Louise McNabb commented.

Weezie, the only name by which she is known to most people, is chairman of Women's Home Council, a member of Mortar Board and corresponding secretary of Kappa Alpha Theta. She served as vice-president of the German club and as social chairman of the YWCA, was a member of the honor society and was vice-president of Phi Beta Kappa. When Weezie was declared that she just couldn't. Always on the circulation staff of publications, she was once talked into writing a feature story on insomnia. She spent days writing it and wore herself down. Weezie said that she could never write another thing that was funny.

"I don't know what I'll do after graduation. I may teach," Weezie said, not very enthusiastically. "I'd like to do something in personal work. I like to work with people. As a history major, Weezie acknowledged that freshman history was a bit discouraging.

"The most interesting things Weezie has done, she claimed, was going to Mexico last summer with a group of seven other girls. They studied at the University of Mexico and lived with a Mexican family.

"She related to the most fun they had was at the market place. "We had a wonderful time," she said, "but we didn't know very much Spanish. Another difficulty was the eating habits of the Mexicans. We had to go out and eat on the first and the day and then nothing. We had to go out and eat and fill our families."

"She related that the most fun they had was at the market place. "We had a wonderful time," she said. "She related that one of the funniest experiences she had was when she made a note remark in English doubting the authenticity of the wares sold by an old Mexican woman and was met by "This is the real Mexican," she exclaimed condescendingly with a strong Mexican accent.

Weezie, the only name by which she is known to most people, is chairman of Women's Home Council, a member of Mortar Board and corresponding secretary of Kappa Alpha Theta. She served as vice-president of the German club and as social chairman of the YWCA, was a member of the honor society and was vice-president of Phi Beta Kappa. When Weezie was declared that she just couldn't. Always on the circulation staff of publications, she was once talked into writing a feature story on insomnia. She spent days writing it and wore herself down. Weezie said that she could never write another thing that was funny.

"I don't know what I'll do after graduation. I may teach," Weezie said, not very enthusiastically. "I'd like to do something in personal work. I like to work with people. As a history major, Weezie acknowledged that freshman history was a bit discouraging.

"The most interesting things Weezie has done, she claimed, was going to Mexico last summer with a group of seven other girls. They studied at the University of Mexico and lived with a Mexican family.

"She related to the most fun they had was at the market place. "We had a wonderful time," she said. "but we didn't know very much Spanish. Another difficulty was the eating habits of the Mexicans. We had to go out and eat on the first and the day and then nothing. We had to go out and eat and fill our families."

"She related that the most fun they had was at the market place. "I was surprised," she said. "I was surprised when the Mexicans would not say anything about the shirts off their backs, if they could."

"She related that one of the funniest experiences she had was when she made a note remark in English doubting the authenticity of the wares sold by an old Mexican woman and was met by "This is the real Mexican," she exclaimed condescendingly with a strong Mexican accent.

"Walking in Mexico is a dangerous occupation" Weezie explained. "When the house first has the right of way and crossing the wide streets is indeed a feat. Weezie laughed, 'This is a lot about Mexico. My family won't let me mention it, although they haven't heard so much about my trip.'

VA Announces New Regulations

The Veteran's Administration has announced new regulations regarding the transfer of a veteran from a small college to a larger one and the increase in subsistence payment with the acquisition of dependents. Since VA must approve any change of institution, a trainee's advance declaration of intent to transfer will facilitate VA's permission. Veterans who have acquired dependents should notify the VA immediately, since the payments increase only as of the date notified. Failure to return subsistence allowance overpayments will result in the deduction of amounts owed from benefits of unemployment if such benefits are desired by a veteran.

City To Donate Historic Material For Conference

Photographs and material illustrating the use of Williamsburg as a “living laboratory” of early American history have been donated to Mexico City for inclusion in the exhibit being prepared for the second United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization general conference there next month. The material is being used at the request of the United States National Commission for UNESCO. Included are photographs of school groups viewing various eighteenth century buildings and activities here, maps and educational folders and the illustrated brochure “America’s Williamsburg.”

The exhibit in Mexico City will include materials from most of the member nations under the general title of “The Role of Museums in Popular Education.” A number of American museums and educational institutions have contributed material covering educational work for children, middle schools, educational work for adults and scientific work.

In addition to its wide interest as a significant national shrine and a picturesque recreation of Colonial days, Williamsburg, through its Rockefeller-financed restoration, has become a virtual laboratory of early American history for school children and advanced students.

The regulation requires that all bicycles be equipped with a light. An $8 fine is imposed for violations. The police have been on patrol at 12 midnight, but so far have stated that if the violations continue, students will be fined.” Lambert declared.

the veterans of William and Mary phoned, a girl wandered to the switchboard and asked "Have you seen my man?"" Noting our baffled expression she added, "I guess you don’t know him, do you?" Simultaneously one boy on a house phone, confronted with number plates, emitted a bewildered "O-H-H." This combined switchboard and information desk is just too much. I think I’ll return to some place comparatively quiet and peaceful, the Grand Central Station.

Dick Bethards and Janet Walker shed a few years' maturity to play the two children, Henry and Gladys, while William Rux watered Brooklynese as the plug-headed telegraph boy. Mary Gerchak rounded out the list of featured players in the 31-character play, at the retail, know-all fortune teller.

Unusual Settings

Mr. Willett's unusual play calls for unusual settings. Mr. Roger Sherman, designer for the William and Mary Theatre, had to maneuver extensively to cope with the limitations of the Phi Beta stage. His plans were executed by Mr. Albert E. Haak, newly acquired technical director, and former stage manager of the Ernie Pyle theatre in Tokyo. Sherman, Haak, and a student stagecrew, headed by Wilford Leach, worked for four weeks on sets, lights, and the other phases of production.

Miss Althea Hunt, now in her 21st year as director of the college theatre, "put the show to bed" with last-minute polishing at the final dress-rehearsal tonight. Meanwhile she held try-outs for the next play, Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," which will go into rehearsal soon after the last curtain calls of "Skin" on Thursday night.

Complete Cast

The complete cast of the comedy includes Kenneth McGinn, Susan Strong, Roy Brink, William Norgren, June Lockonour, Jean Cutler, Allen Kays, Richard O'Neill, Stanley Perlman, Christian Men, Kyle McIntyre, Frances Thatcher, Elizabeth Bartlett, William Fox, and Ronald King.

Tickets for "The Skin of Our Teeth" and for all productions this season will be on sale at the box office in Phi Beta Kappa hall on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon until performance time.

While they were in the trees, the Tar Heels announced that the pennant was going to a pep rally; and then when they were safe in their trusty Town and Country nearby, they announced that the pep rally would be one in Chapel Hill. Further remarks are censored.
