Copy—Richmond Va.

June 21st, 1856.

My dear Sir,

I have not talked until I found this letter you ask me to send to you. I send the original, not a copy. Look at it. See that it says that you will do nothing to bring about the death of either Buchanan or Pierce: that you say: "If I can be of service to you let me know." Remember that this was written after the Hampton Convention selected delegates and tell me if I deserved the upbraiding for saying how you might come me?—You must have looked through all the stales that your own harts.

Henry A. Wise.
