Dear Sir,

I am enclosing the note that your Clerk sent on by me on James C. Peacher for collection for $98 and some cents which is still in my hands and not collected although I have urged him for it repeatedly and tried to prevail on him to pay it but never could get him to pay it although he has promised from time to time that he would pay it or send it to you; I do believe that he is now very able to pay it without any inconvenience. I wrote to you some two or three years ago whether or not I should put it in the hands of an officer and force it out of him by law; but received no answer or instructions from you what to do about it.

It is my impression that that he never intends to pay it unless compelled by law. Finally, I have concluded to send you the note and you can either keep the note and send me my receipt or assign the note over to me and send it back by Mr. Spencer Faulconer and I will collect the money and send it you by mail.

Respectfully yours,

James Coleman
