Dr. Williams Will Direct Department of Psychology

Bright Will Assume Post As Professor, Placement Directors

Among the 38 new appointees to the college faculty are Dr. Stanley Williams, who will serve as head of W&M. A.B.A. and M.A. from the University of Maine, Dr. Bright will become a member of the Placement Bureau and the Work-Study plan and an assistant professor of history.

Dr. Williams holds a B.A. and M.A. from U.C.L.A. and received his Ph.D. from Yale University. Immediately preceding his appointment to the William and Mary faculty, he taught at Johns Hopkins University and has held positions at Yale and Brown University. From 1943 until 1946, Dr. Williams served as a lieutenant in the medical department of the United States Navy.

Formerly at Norfolk Free College, where he held the position of assistant employment at the Norfolk B.C.C., Seabright was a graduate student in sociology at M.I.T. and was engaged in social and recreational work for veterans and joined the staff of the newly created St. Helena extension in 1945 at director of admissions.

Students may secure their admission cards between 8 A.M. and 3 P.M. on Saturday, September 24 and 25, in the office of the registrar or in the offices of the various colleges and at the desk of the newly created St. Helena extension in 1945 at director of admissions.

Two men will join the faculty as assistant professors of psychology this year. They are Joseph Curtis of the department of jurisprudence and Dr. R. L. Martin from the department of education.

Although the total attendance was lower this year than that of last year, it was equal to the fact that the complete program included eight nights this year for entering students in the foyer and dining area of the Barter Theatre. The entire month of July was devoted to the production of The Pursuit of Happiness, and all performances were sold out. The enthusiasm of the audience.

In contrast to last year's produc- tion, put on without profes- sional actors, the cast this year included two Broadway actors, Walker Brook and John Morey. Walker Brook, as Joe, played Thomas Jefferson, is one of Broadway's leading men. He has had leads with the New York City Lyric Opera and has appeared with Tead Parish in The Eagle Had Two Heads and with Herb Stover in The Christmas Story. He also played with Lawrence Olivier and Vivien Leigh in Romeo and Juliet and has appeared in several radio programs.

Welcome, Freshmen

A college can mean a hundred things to a hundred different people. Will it mean to the members of the Class of 1952, now being welcomed to William and Mary in the Orientation Week program, depend on the individual.

To most of them, William and Mary will mean only one thing. It may be the third floor stacks of the library or the philosophy department; it may be the famous V-shaped pyramids at the end of the street, or the American Stadium. Whatever it is, it means home. Home is where the heart is. It's a place where all the friends and people who are important to you are gathered and where you can be yourself. It's a place where you can always find your own place.

The lodges will also be available for social purposes. Any one who is willing to do so can visit the lodges from 3-10 P.M. on Tuesdays through Fridays and on special hours in the fraternity lodges is a healthy challenge to the judgment and good taste of the students which we sincerely hope they will be able to meet.

It's up to us, the students, to make sure that when they visit the lodges, they will be treated with hospitality. They will be the lonely ones, out on the fringe, who wish they'd stayed at home. And now you little, monsters we have to face the world, to meet the responsibilities offered to them at college. To some, college will mean new friends. To others, college will mean the football field or the baseball diamond. Some will devote themselves to student government, and only those on the Dean's list will be able to accept the position of sergeant-at-arms. Others will work on a nerve-shattering project which stays with a student through the years.

The effect of this sudden expansion of dating privileges on the administration of the college, especially for the freshmen, was made possible by the early return of the faculty. It's up to all of us to prove that we really mean something, that we are not just a collection of individuals, but a college, the William and Mary the second oldest college in the country.

The school has had many great years; this year can be surpassing all of them. We are close now to a Student Government. The students have never been so united. They have joined together, the most of us do have a goal. I think that we are prone to point to this as an expression as a lack of college spirit. It may not be as "rah rah" as the pre-war student, but it's as sincere as the pre-war student. It really means something, the "rah rah" and the "hurrah" are a little more cynical today than yesterday.

For the past two years there has been an attempt to widen the scope of the students and last year we were able to extend it to include some things like its pre-war level. But before we can capture that spirit which stays with a student through the years, it is necessary, at a college this size, to have an individual to establish his identity, to have a place on campus where he can gather. It's a human weakness to desire recognition, but at William and Mary, the larger organ, the college magazine. To some, college will mean new friends. To others, college will mean the football field or the baseball diamond. Some will devote themselves to student government, but need the support of the administration in extending a greeting to you, to the college magazine. To some, college will mean the football field or the baseball diamond. Some will devote themselves to student government, but need the support of the administration in extending a greeting to you, and Mary what it is. Each of us has been much said about the "spirit" that really means something, the "rah rah" and the "hurrah" are a little more cynical today than yesterday.

And so it goes with the freshmen. We hope that college will be many things. To some, college will mean the football field or the baseball diamond. Some will devote themselves to student government, but need the support of the administration in extending a greeting to you, and Mary what it is. Each of us has been much said about the "spirit" that really means something, the "rah rah" and the "hurrah" are a little more cynical today than yesterday.

Meanwhile, we should face the students, as individuals, in order to give them the recognition, but need the support of the administration in extending a greeting to you, and Mary what it is. The Great Campaign, a satire on elections, will be the first of the three plays to be presented by the William and Mary Theatre this season. This production is shown on October 27 and 28, uses song and dance to mean of emphasizing the theme.

The timing of the play seems particularly appropriate for the presidential elections will be held the following week. Brooks Atkinson says of this play by Arlen, who announced that it is "a gaudy American yarn of political dissolution." The play was not produced on Broadway but was shown by the Experimental Theatre in New York City. It was for a bachelor's degree and must complete at least one more year. Students of the College of Business Administration and Accounting, Government, Economics, and Public Administration are eligible for the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Taxation. The program is designed for students who are doing the major portion of their work in business administration and accounting, government, economics, or in order to prepare them for their entry into this comparatively new sphere of opportunity and service.

Curtis John Faculty

In order to facilitate its program, the college has added to its faculty a specialist in tax law, Joseph Liver, who will serve as an associate professor of jurisprudence. Curtis received his M. A. and Ph. D. from New York University and served during the war as a major in the Army Air Corps. Curtis will offer two of the courses in the new taxation program during the first semester of this year, federal taxation and state and personal taxation. Special lecturers in the various fields of taxation will appear at the college from time to time in connection with the new field of study.

College To Inaugurate New Taxation Program For Graduate Degree

In response to growing need for more adequate knowledge of tax problems, the college will begin a new course of studies this fall, leading to the degree of Master of Arts in Taxation.

Try-Outs Scheduled For September 27-29

The try-out eliminations will be held on Thursday, September 26. The other two plays of the season will be shown on March 16 and 17 and on May 4 and 5. The March offering will probably be a Shakespearean historical drama and the May production, a modern comedy. Season tickets for the three plays are $2.56 for reserved seats and $1.80 for the general admission seats.

Indians Will Open Title Defense Against SC Champs
Plan Seven Loop Games

Coach Rube McCray's 1948 William and Mary football squad will embark on one of the most ambitious gridiron schedules ever undertaken by a team from the Reservation next week when the Brave journey to Charlotte, N. C., to face Davidson Saturday at 3 P. M. at Memorial Stadium.

The tilt with Davidson will be the sixth meeting between the two schools. The Indians have won three, lost two, and counted a tie in their previous contests. This year's game will be played before a homecoming crowd against their traditional foe, the University of North Carolina team, only state school to appear on the Tribe's schedule.

The lettermen are predominate- ly junior and senior, led by the 12-co-captains, Lou Housman and Rube McCray (Kappa Sigma), a pair of fine linemen.

Also reporting was Jack Cloud, the Tribe's outstanding candidate for All-America honors who seems to have recovered completely from the knee operation designed to remove the injury suffered in the Dixie Bowl against Arkansas Jan. 1. Another member of McCray's 1947 wrecking crew, Tommy Korczowski, is back for what may prove to be his greatest season on the gridiron.

Six regulars are back from the 1947 team which could the Dixie Bowl and the battle is on for the championship again this year, including 150 men, 150 players, 150 men, and 150 players, 150 men, and 150 players.

When football coach R. H. (Rube) McCray issued the call to rivets in his Southeastern Conference schools on September 12, the 150 men, including 150 players, 150 men, and 150 players, showed up to begin training for the rugged 10-game schedule that had been prepared for them.

Kovaleski And Bartzen Win College Doubles Crown

The first team to represent Williams and Mary during the 1948-49 school year was the Jun­ior Varsity football team, which outscored the Newport News Ap­pointment 18-15 in New­port News September 10.

The two teams battled to a 7-7 tie at the end of the first half, but the superior ability of the Light­ning Green began to show through in the third quarter, when two touchdowns were scored, and the fourth quarter was decided when the Indians picked up a safety.

Williams and Mary's power is evident from the statistics, which show the Indians with 12 first downs and the Maroons with just three in the game which played in a drizzle.

must have to be outstanding oven's to light, and that in the capabilities of the individual men.

The William and Mary squad boasts some of the most outstanding men in college football in sev­eral departments, and for that reason will make an excellent showing against the best teams on the 1948 schedule.

In general, the team is in good shape, and some of the injuries which dogged the Braves last fall have disappeared. Against David­son Saturday, the Tribe­men will have something of a dress rehearsal for the Wake Forest game here next week, when Dean Coach D. C. Williams and Mary compiled six points to five for San Jose, four each for North Carolina and Southern California, three for Notre Dame and two each for Tu­dor and the University of Wash­ington.

Both Bartzen, now graduated, and Kovaleski, reached the quar­ter­final round where they were eliminated. Howe Atwater of W&M started the third round of singles competition before being eliminated by Stim, 6-3, 6-1 and the other member of the Braves' contingent, Bob Galloway, went out in straight sets before falling to Bob Perez of Southern Cal.

Brave Face Trouble

The W&M championship doubles tandem had some tough­going before taking the title. In the first round, they breezed past Conway, Carver and Don Lowen of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-4 and then battled George Gossler and Philip Seymour of Calif­ornia 6-3, 6-4.

Then the going became tougher, and the Braves were eliminated by Bowing, Frattle and Beet­ham, College of the Pacific 6-2, 6-2 in the second round.

The quarter­final battle went the limit before Kovaleski and Bartzen could eliminate the stand­ing team from Southern Calif­ornia, Paul Stullback and John Shel­ley, 6-2, 6-3.

Talented Group of Freshmen To Revive Yearling Eleven

Coach Al Thomas will have a large group of talented freshmen from which to choose a starting eleven to embark on the four-game schedule which gets underway October 15. On that date, the fresh travel to Annapolis to meet the junior Varsity team of the Naval Academy. This will be the first freshman team here since 1942.

While some of the freshmen who will wear the big green suits that fall have been in the service and will be eligible for four years of varsity competition, most of the new men will be fresh out of high school and will be ineligible until next year.

Almost two-thirds of the men listed on the freshman roster are products of Virginia high schools. Leading the list of Old Dominion scholastic stars is the name of Ted Filer, John Marshall High School star who was All-Richmond, All-State and All-Southern last fall.

Three-fourths of the 1945 All-State high school backfield of Virginia will be on hand in the person of Filer, Howard Borum of Portsmouth's Woodrow Wilson.

As W&M Ace Enters Third Season

Wend has gotten around about Jack Cloud's ability and fame as a line-smashing fullback, and he is now one of the top candidates of the country for All-America honors in the bright new football season approaches.

Perhaps the most outspoken supporter of the human tractor is Land Rice, who named Jack to the American sports writers, Grant-supporter of the human tractor.

Jack Cloud, a sophomore in 1947, has played well and has won the acclaim of all the sports writers who have seen him perform. When the Indians campaigned the University of Maryland a week ago, Washingtonserialize bubbled over with praise for Cloud.

Perhaps the greatest threat to any all-star mention for Cloud from this region was Lu Garth, the conference's leading scorer last year, who has been declared ineligibility and has joined the pro ranks with the Baltimore Colts of the All-American conference.

Cloud was mentioned to All-State and All-Southern teams both seasons he has played for William and Mary, and last year he was nominated to the third team of the Associated Press All-America as well as the first team of the one picked by the New York Sun.

If Cloud wins widespread All-America mention this year, he will be the third W&M player to attain such recognition. Both Carswell and Knox Ramsey were honored widely for their outstanding guard play on the Reservation.

Broderick, head coach, and a half ago, Washington scribes bubbled over with praise for Cloud. Power is also a Duke type, giving much publicity to the program in its early workouts because of his great size and is considered a rare find.

The 1948 William and Mary coaching staff is unchanged from last year, and lists among its members two W&M graduates, Marvin Tans and Al Vandeweghe. Others on the staff of Head Coach C. H. (Rube) McCray include Barney Wilson, backfield coach; Tom Yover, coach of centers and backs, and assistant coach and head basketball men's coach, Al Thomas, freshman coach, and Stan Magdziak, students who played for the Big Green team last year.

Disc Jockey Vetoes Hill-Billy Music

Bill Williams Broadcasts Over WHYU

By Mary Lou Hostetter

"Come in! Come in! And do sit down—that is, if you can find the chair hidden behind the door." Walter A. (Bill) Williams, standing candidate for William and Mary Homecoming king, greeted your FLAT HAT reporter. Undertaking her job as two-drop shop he chortled, "This is my first page of publishing...trying my picture in the post office last summer."

To that handful of students in the area who got up with the roosters and other minor collarhood for hill-billy music, Williams' voice may have been a familiar one, for he spent his time at that well known radio phenomena, the disc jockey, on station WHYU in Newport News. "But, now," he commented sadly, "I'm reduced to writing Travis House menus, which shows you how life can get."

When asked about his current employment, his response was that if he ever had the time, he would like to sponsor a contest for aspiring disc jockeys with a definite purpose in view. By inviting the winners to see in that capacity just one day, he feels that this would be a sure way to lure out even the most sophisticated radio audience and would cure even for all eager disc jockey hopefuls.

In addition to these early morning jaunts to Newport News, Williams worked for The Common Glory and painted numerous signs and trucks for local residents. When Williams was 18, A. M., he arrived in Newport News in time to breakfast with Gus, the owner of a restaurant. Since he was the only customer Gus had at that time of the morning, he felt that this would be a sure way to try out even the most sophisticated radio audience and would cure even for all eager disc jockey hopefuls.

As a disc jockey, he operated his own control, utilizing two mikes which played 30 records an hour. He had to be familiar with a file of 1500 records and 5000 transcriptions from which he selected 70 each morning between 5:30 and 6 A. M., in between which he also edited the news.

This summer, Williams arranged to work at WHYU in Newport News. "But, now," he commented sadly, "I'm reduced to writing Travis House menus, which shows you how life can get." By inviting the winners to see in that capacity just one day, he feels that this would be a sure way to lure out even the most sophisticated radio audience and would cure even for all eager disc jockey hopefuls.

"The romantic twist to requisites often leaves a disc jockey's daily mail for some enchantment, especially when quarreling. In a job such as this, 'one can find out all sorts of social relations,' Williams asserts." As a disc jockey, he operated his own control, utilizing two mikes which played 30 records an hour. He had to be familiar with a file of 1500 records and 5000 transcriptions from which he selected 70 each morning between 5:30 and 6 A. M., in between which he also edited the news.

This summer, Williams arranged two programs for William and Mary professors. At close of college in June, Dr. Charles Q. Gerber, former assistant professor of government, commented on the Republican convention, and Dr. Warren Ross, head of the government department, did the same after the Democratic one. In previous years, Williams had served as radio announcer, program man and chief of continuity; he has been drafted, however, and is now a member of the 345th Army Air Force.

"Marching Through Georgia" on college corner; or sing your way to classes. There are also all sorts of possibilities. For example, You've got the general idea, now. Just one parting warning, the administration frowns on main-dish lunches after class.
College Activities Offer Wide Range For Participation

There are more than 48 extra-curricular activities on the campus of William and Mary this year, excluding sororities, fraternities and varsity sports.

Membership in student government offices, including the Senate and the assembly, both men's and women's Honor Councils and the executive and judicial branches of the women's student government is gained only through student body elections.

An invitation to join the professional societies such as Chi Delta Phi, Eta Sigma Phi, Pi Kappa Delta, Kappa Chi, Kappa Delta Pi and Theta Alpha Phi usually comes after one has made application to join the organization on a competitive basis or after one has shown sufficient interest in a particular field to warrant an invitation.

Musical Organizations

For the musically-inclined there are the William and Mary Choral Society, the Women's Choral Society, the William and Mary Chorus, the William and Mary Singers, the Williamsburg Choral Society and the University Women's Choral Society. A judicious selection of activities in which the student is especially interested may open the way to membership in any of these organizations.

Howard Scammon Will Teach Fine Arts — 'Common Glory' Player Joins Faculty

Former W&M Student Plays Pitt, Jefferson

Howard Scammon, a William and Mary graduate, returns to the campus this fall as the Fine Arts department faculty as an instructor in speech, oral interpretation, radio and dictation classes.

After receiving his B. A. degree in 1948, Scammon taught at the Beacon School in Wellview, Mass., and at the Newark Academy in Newark, N. J. until 1943. From 1943 to 1946 he served with the U.S. Army.

While attending graduate school at Northwestern University, he was contacted by Althea Hunt, professor of fine arts at William and Mary, and Scammon and William Harper. Thirteen one-act plays were produced under the direction of Althea Hunt in the foyer of Phi Beta Kappa Hall and in Wren Kitchen.

Chinese Play Presented

The members of the Institute were taught by members of the Fine Arts department in the fields of stagecraft, acting and play production, design in the theatre, voice and interpretation and playwriting. Lectures and seminars were conducted throughout the summer by such men as Fredric McConnell, director of the Professional Theatre; John Manos and Mary McCarthy, former students, members of the faculty; and Harold Burris-Jones, "America's greatest theatrical designer"; George Froelick, drama critic; Edward C. Cole, the director of the American Television Society; and Robert Barrow, an authority on sound in the theatre.

First Institute Of Theatre Completes Summer Courses In Drama, Stagecraft

By Joan Carpenter

For the first time in William and Mary history, the Institute of the Theatre, directed by Althea Hunt, was introduced this summer. The purpose of the Institute was to present classes in subjects related to the theatre and special lectures and seminars by men of prominence in the theatre world.

Membership Totals 50

The numbers of the Institute were those taking theatre classes, former students, members of the Common Glory cast, and out-of-town visitors who came to hear the special speakers. The total permanent membership came to approximately 50. Sixteen plays were written in the phospheware classes, instructed by Susanne Sherman. Two of these were produced, one of which was written by Glenn Garrison and William Harper. Thirteen one-act plays were produced under the direction of Althea Hunt in the foyer of Phi Beta Kappa Hall and in Wren Kitchen.

Chinese Play Presented

One large production, a Chinese play, "Pity Presenter," was staged in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. John Manos and Mary McCarthy had the lead roles in this comedy. Several new additions were made to the stage in Wren Kitchen. New scenic flats were made, and Albert Nash and Roger Sherman designed and built a new light board and a permanent strip of spot lights.

"The purpose of the Institute is to bring authorities in every phase of the theatre to William and Mary and to correlate their lectures with the subject matter in the classes," stated Althea Hunt.

IN COSTUME AS THOMAS JEFFERSON, HOWARD SCAMMON RELAXES BETWEEN SCENES—After starring in "The Common Glory," Mr. Scammon, a William and Mary graduate, will return to teach in the fine arts department.
Morgan Sets Tribunal For Freshman Class

Sophomore Class President J. P. Morgan announced today that the first Freshman Tribunal of the year will be held on Wednesday, September 28, at Phi Beta Kappa Hall from 7 to 8 P. M., and will be held every other week at the same time thereafter.

"This meeting is compulsory for all freshmen, and they are to attend in old clothes with their "diss" caps," Those Tribunals are held not only to maintain a high standard of spirit throughout the student body but to acquaint freshmen with that same spirit and familiarize them with William and Mary "erects de corps." Morgan declared.

The Freshman Tribunal is an ancient and revered institution at William and Mary that has attained a high degree of importance in the student body curriculum since its founding.

Members of the Tribunal are chosen from the upper classes of the student body. Attendance at the trials is compulsory for all freshmen, who are required to sit downtown in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Upholders may attend the Tribunals if they so desire.

It has been established by officers of the upper classes that the Tribunals are to be conducted forward in a dignified manner.

ROTC Staff Seeks Increased Enrollment

This session will mark the second and yearly activity of the College of William and Mary. A successful start was made last year in spite of a small enrollment. This year, however, a greater interest, Mr. George D. Sand, as head of the ROTC staff.

Registration begins on the Selective Service Act for 1948 to 1949. Students who take ROTC courses: Col. Giles R. Carpenter, head of the department of military science and tactics, made the following statement: "Certain selected students will have the chance to serve in this capacity. We will allow them to remain at the college until they graduate. They will then be subject to the Selective Service Act. All others will be called as officers."

Details of the program may be obtained at the ARMY office in Row Gymnasium.

Williamsburg Jaycees To Sponsor Air Show At The College Airport

Featuring a professional stunt act including a parachute jump, an air show will be held today, October 3, by the management of Aviation Services, Inc., and the Williamsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, Clarke H. Williams, president, announced last week.

The show is to be held at College Airport on Route 60, west of Williamsburg. An alternate date of October 10 has been planned in case the October 3 date is rained out.

Aerial acrobatics by the Fox Stunt Act will include slow and daring stunts, dogfighting, and other stunts. The stunt act will also include an air show held at the local airport.

The show is to be held at College Airport and will feature Army and Navy exhibits, air bugs, model airplanes, and other displays.

An Air Week will be held in Williamsburg from September 29 to October 2. Planned during the week will be movies at local schools and gratis rides, the Air Scout display and programs of the college and high school.

Winners of the first annual Williamsburg Golf Tournament were also present to secure Army or Navy trophies, and to "buzz" the field.

DECISION TO SPONSOR THE AIR SHOW WAS MADE BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS TO TAKE CHARGE OF THE PROGRAM AND OPERATIONS RESPECTIVELY. UNDER JOHN J. ROBERTS, JR., AS CHAIRMAN OF THE PROGRAM COMMITTEE, THE SHOW WILL BE HELD.

WYCA To Sponsor Party

On Saturday, September 25, at 5 P. M., the WYCA will close carnival activities with its annual Big-Little Sister Party in the language room.

Three movies concerned with the restoration of Williamsburg will be shown and a reception will follow in Barrett Living Room.
