W&M/NASA Host Series

"Our Future in the Cosmos," the current lecture program being co-sponsored by the College and NASA is living up to its name as an "everyman series."

Alvin Toffler, author of "Future Shock," drew some more than 1,000 persons who requested tickets after the auditorium space had been filled. Arrangements for the lecture series are beyond the regular question and answer period. About 200 people, including Mr. and Mrs. Graves, and Edgar M. Cortright, director, and John E. Duberg, associate director, NASA Langley Research Center, adjourned to the school library with the speaker and were still there when security personnel came to close the building for the night at 11:30 p.m.

Arrangements for the lecture series are being handled through the Office of Special Programs at the Virginia Associated Research Campus (VARC) in Newport News. Carson Barnes, director, is extremely pleased with the response the series has been receiving.

"The response has passed my expectations and the willingness of the speakers to talk informally with members of the audience following their formal presentations has really made this series live up to its name as an "everyman series."

Barnes added that his office is already receiving requests for tickets to the last two lectures in the series, January 13, and April 14. Gerard Pel, president-publisher, Scientific American, Author of The Acceleration of History and Science in the Cause of Man.

The series was opened in July by John Platt, associate director of the Mental Health Research Institute, University of Michigan. Reflecting on the success of the series, Barnes noted that a large measure of its success was the result of team work between the College and NASA. Edward Long and Joseph Heyman and other members of NASA's Colloquium Committee as well as many students and faculty members at the College have worked closely with the Office of Special Programs on the series.

Members of Circle K served as ticket takers and directed people to their seats. Members of Delta Delta Delta sorority, were ushers and handled the microphones during the question and answer sessions after the Toffler lecture. According to Barnes, discussions are already underway with NASA officials for supporting grants to continue the series and all members of the College community who wish to contribute assistance or any ideas may do so by contacting the Office of Special Programs. If the series is continued, it is anticipated that some lectures will be held on the William and Mary campus and others at various locations in the Tidewater area.

Author on Campus

Robert William Fogel, co-author of "Time on the Cross," a major new study on American slavery, will speak Thursday evening, October 17, at 8 p.m. in Millington Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Marshall-Wythe Institute for Research in the Social Sciences. Fogel will speak on "From the Marxists to the Mormons: Notes on the Collective Network."

Thursday afternoon Fogel will speak at a meeting of the Williamsburg Seminar, co-sponsored by the Marshall-Wythe Institute and the Institute of Early American History and Culture in the Kellogg Library of the Institute. He will discuss informally the preparation of his major new study on American slavery.

Dennis Meadows

"The enthusiasm with which speakers have been received and the informal atmosphere which has allowed for audience participation at each program is proof I think that people are interested in hearing about global issues when they are presented in a format that is not too overwhelming," said Barnes.

Faculty News

Chemistry

Randolph Coleman, assistant professor, and David Thompson, associate professor, recently attended a regional conference entitled "Transactions Metal Promoted Alkylation of Alkenes" in the Journal of Organometallic Chemistry, 69, C27 (1974).

Economics

Professors Martin A. Garrett, Jr., and Leonard C. Schifrin recently completed a study on "The Economic Effects of Tropical Storm 'Agnes' on Virginia." This study is part of a larger study by the Virginia Economic Council on the total effects - ecological, environmental, and economic - in Virginia of the 1972 storm. The VIMS study, in its third phase, is one of a larger study by the Chesapeake Research Consortium on the impact of hurricane Agnes throughout the Chesapeake Bay estuarine system. The project was financed by a grant from the Army Corps of Engineers. Garrett and Schifrin presented their findings in a paper given at a symposium at the University of Maryland on May 7.

Schifrin has been invited to attend the Congress on Health Manpower sponsored by the American Public Health Association in Chicago, October 31 - November 2. His paper presented at the Second Seminar on the Economics of Innovation in the Pharmaceutical Industry, November 5, 1973, is being published by the American University as part of the proceedings of that seminar.

Fine Arts

Patricia M. Winter, lecturer, and Henry Coleman, associate professor, judged the Monticello Shopping Art Show which was held on September 14.

A paper by assistant professor Miles Chappell, "Lodovico Cigoli's 'Resurrection' for the Pitti Palace," concerning a painting discovered in 1973 while doing work in Italy with a Summer Research Grant, was published in the August issue of the Bulletin of the Metropolitan Museum.

Government

Associate professor Roger W. Smith's essay, "The Economy of Gifts," has been accepted for publication in Political Theory.

History

Edward Crapol, associate professor, will be a commentator for a symposium on "The American Revolutionary War," which will be held as part of the eighth annual Duquesne University History Forum, October 30-Nov. 1. The conference will be held at Chatham Center, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Languages

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

Professor Thomas H. Jolls attended a meeting of the American Association of University Women in Williamsburg earlier this month. Mrs. Jolls lectured on "The Economy of Gifts," addressed the Student Development Committee, and took part in a workshop on "Innovation in Education.

Sociology

R. Wayne Kendro, professor, has been appointed by the State Mental Health and Mental Retardation Professional Advisory Board to serve as a member on a committee that will be formed to address the need and feasibility of programs directed toward the prevention of mental retardation. The Professional Advisory Board was directed to make this study by the General Assembly.

William and Mary News

Volume III, Number 6

October 15, 1974
Information Services Personnel Changes Announced

The administrator who has edited and developed the William and Mary News from its inception two years ago has been appointed to new responsibilities in the College's publications program.

Eleanor R. Anderson, information officer, will assume the director of publications, S. Dean Olson, in the development, production and dissemination of all William and Mary publications. Miss Olson's responsibilities were redefined to coincide with her recent appointment to new responsibilities at the Medical School.

Wallace was named supervisor of the College Printing Office and that office's administrative and editorial assignments. Fred Healy, also an information officer, will be assigned to new responsibilities in the Office of Information Services.

The change is part of a realignment of responsibilities within the Office of Information Services. Mrs. Healy will also assist in the development of news and information materials which are disseminated through public media by the College News Office.

OD Offers Dental Services to W&M Students

Old Dominion University, formerly a branch of the College, has offered through the agency of Dorothy M. Jones, associate professor, to make arrangements for complete oral examinations with X-rays and complete cleaning of the teeth, all for $3, to any William and Mary student who wishes to participate.

"This invitation obviously is not extended in the hopes of making money, as this is a token for in relation to the value received. They have close to 60 students in the Dental Hygiene Clinic and could arrange for as many William and Mary students to be seen at the same time as the College would like, so that transportation costs and considerations would be minimal," noted Dr. R. D. Cilley, director of the student health services.

The technicians would see the patients 9 a.m., 10:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Appointments can be made by calling 489-8000, Ext. 414, 415, or 464.

Dr. James Hirschfeld, director of the Dental Hygiene Clinic, extends his warm welcome to William and Mary students and if there are arrangements that can be made specially for groups of them, he will cooperate to his fullest extent," Dr. Cilley stated.

Questions concerning the program should be directed to Dr. Cilley at Ext. 386.

Office of Development

National Research Council - Postdoctoral Research Opportunities

These programs provide opportunities for research for postdoctoral scientists in participating federal research laboratories. The following fields are included: Chemical, Mathematical, and Physical Sciences; Biological and Behavioral Sciences; Atmospheric, Earth, and Space Sciences. Announcement of specific laboratories are available in the appropriate departments and in Mrs. Neiman's office.

Deadline: January 10, 1975 except for NASA which also has May 15 and September 15 deadlines.

Fulbright-Hays Awards

Applications are still being accepted for senior appointments and for research awards in some countries. Call Mrs. Neiman for specifics.

A newly announced Silver Opportunity Research Fellowship (established on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the Fulbright-Hays program) will support a recently graduated or advanced PhD candidate whose project relates to developments and trends in U.S.-Netherlands relations or to developments and trends in European-American relations. Applications will be received until November 1, 1974.

National Science Foundation

Information is available concerning the U.S. - Australia Cooperative Science Program which includes seminars/workshops; scientific visits; cooperative research projects.

National Endowment for the Humanities-Youthgrants in the Humanities-
The Youthgrants in the Humanities Program was established in 1972 to support humanities projects developed and conducted by students and other young people. To be considered for a Youthgrant award, a proposed project must meet three basic conditions:

* it must relate in a clear way to the humanities;
* it must have a specific purpose, a carefully designed scope, an identifiable end product, and a high promise of helping individuals to develop their critical faculties;
* although adults may be involved (and are encouraged to serve) as advisors or consultants, young people must carry the major responsibility for its initiation, development and execution.

The Youthgrants Program is expressly designed to encourage ventures similar to those conducted by more experienced professionals within the Endowment's other programs. Proposed projects may, therefore, concern the domestic evolution of an existing program (of either a formal and institutional or informal and public nature); humanitarian research or study of a specific problem (including historical, philosophical, or literary analysis designed to place a current problem or issue into a wider context); or other activities (either traditional or experimental) aimed at applying humanitarian knowledge or disseminating it through film, exhibitions, public presentations, and other media.

As the Bicentennial of the nation's founding approaches, projects relating either to the American Revolution or to the continuing philosophical issues and issues associated with it are especially encouraged. The Endowment is also interested in historical research proposals which seek to trace the development of local communities and local institutions during the 200 years since the nation's birth.

Youthgrants awards for individual projects average under $2,500, but grants for group projects may range up to $10,000.

Deadline for applications concerning projects for the summer of 1975 is November 15, 1974.

Further information is available in Mrs. Neiman's office.

SSRC Research Training Fellowships-Individuals requesting application forms must provide SSRC with certain preliminary information when making their request, as follows: (1) a statement of the proposed research or training; (2) geographic area or areas of interest; (3) proposed site of research or training; (4) age, occupation or current activity, and university or other affiliation; (5) citizenship and/or country of permanent residence; (6) academic degrees held, specifying disciplines or fields of study; (7) if a doctoral candidate, completion date of all requirements except the dissertation; (8) proposed date for beginning of award and requested duration; (9) for postdoctoral grants, approximate amount of support needed; and (10) if a collaborative project is proposed, the academic qualifications of the collaborator. Preliminary inquiries should be made as early as possible before November 1, 1974, and formal applications must be submitted by December 2, 1974.

These fellowships are offered to social scientists who wish to obtain training in research beyond that normally required in doctoral programs, to prepare them for innovative research in the social sciences. Applications from mature scholars are particularly encouraged.

Poet to Speak in Swem Thursday

William Meredith, one of America's leading poets of today, will read from his work this Thursday, October 17, at 8:30 p.m. in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library under the sponsorship of the Department of English.

A professor of English at Connecticut College since 1955, Meredith is the author of six volumes of poetry in addition to several works of biography and translation. He is a frequent contributor of verse to leading national magazines.

Meredith has been the recipient of numerous prizes and awards for his poetry and, in 1963, he was elected Chancellor of the Academy of American Poets. He has served on the faculty of the famed Bread Loaf School of English in past summers and he was Phi Beta Kappa Poet at William and Mary in 1971. His most recent collection of poetry is entitled "Earth Walk: New and Selected Poems."
