Charles Duke Enlists Support Of Students In Landscape Problem To Improve Grounds

"We have to make ourselves collective policiy," declared Charles J. Duke, Jr, before describing the colonial landscape project to a group of students at his office on Saturday.

With the construction of the gardens, an ambitious landscaping project was initiated by the college authorities. Approximately 22 students have already planted in sun beds, and an additional number of varieties have been transplanted. So far, Camellia, Zeala plants valued at $100 apiece have been purchased by the Board of the varieties of lilies have been pur-exhausted. According to Duke, the shrubs and plants will first be planted in the area around the Lilly Lake and the College Lake. Eventually, pine trees, walks and other shrubs will be added with shrubbery, purchase of $50,000 which was be delayed. Duke declared: "The early spring weather has made the activities of the experts expected by the students to be carried from the floor with a Miss Althea Hunt, director. Invitations have been extended, and the college has been asked to sponsor these projects their efforts. The students have already declared that they will be working for the college, probably through the Student Assembly.

The next production of the William and Mary Theatre will be "The School for Scandal," to be presented March 16, 17, 18 and 19.

The board provided $1,400 to be reserved for the other schools and colleges with approximately 600 students. Some of the other schools and colleges may attend the performance any night, but ticket sales will be reserved for the other schools and colleges.

The college now plans to rebuild the gymnasium for the same time, to undertake the landscaping project. Duke expressed the hope that the students will provide the plans for the final round. They will be shown on the stage, and the floor will be put aside until the final round.

For the first time since 1937 the William and Mary Theatre will be maintained a four-night run of its latest production, "The School of Scandal." The production was the first time since 1949 that the William and Mary Theatre has been maintained a four-night run of its latest production.

Women To Elect WSCGA Officers

Women students will go to the polls in the large dormitories to vote from 4-6 p.m. to elect the new president of the Judicial Committee and the Freshman Class of the WSCGA. As a rule, the results which have been of the cause of considerable discussion have been the one determining the hours at which women should visit the fraternity lodges. These hours coincide generally with the times for which the dormitory hours were first set up in 1942, long before the lodges even reached the blueprint stage.

During the first year of occupancy of the lodges, these hours have been considerably reduced by the fraternity men themselves, even though they have caused some inconvenience. The fact that the women must leave at 10 every night but Saturday gives women with 11 p.m. curfews an hour of extra time to return. It leaves the authority of the Greek or the Sunken Gardens. A third possibility, the option of staying in the lodges after 10, would be welcome if the large majority of women, who have expressed the desire to stay later, would accept such a request.

The few couples who go to the lodges on week nights would not object, and they would rarely have little studying.

So a change in the rules which would make them more liberal would wax to the advantage and wishes of many.

Hours which seem appropriate are those at which the women are allowed out of the dormitories. It is the belief of the students that women should be allowed to visit the lodges from a definite time in the afternoon, to be set between noon and three, until 11 six nights a week and until midnight on Saturday. In addition, the lodges should be open to women at all times that college dances are in progress.

Any such change would necessarily come from the president of the college, who would act upon a recommendent from the administration.

If the Interfraternity Council would present such a petition to the proper authorities, the needed changes probably would result soon.

of the year at William and Mary after two years as a South Carolina campaigner while he was in the

Olin 'Lefty' Rogers Named New W&M Baseball Coach

Athletic Director H. N. (Irble) McCray announced the appointment of Olin (Lefty) Rogers to the position of baseball coach last Wednesday. Rogers will succeed
Marvin Bass who is now at North Carolina. Rogers, a member of the class of 1936 at the University of Virannouncement made by McCray.

We feel fortunate in getting him to handle the spring sport. His background and high personal character combine the features we want in a coach," stated McCray.

Rogers has had a great deal of baseball experience. He played two years at the University of Virginia, then signed with the Washington Senators and remains in the property of the Senators for three years. His six-year period of professional ball includning many a libero and Willett-

Rogers was used as both a pitcher and an outfielder. The new coach started work immEDIATELY by initiating practices for the pitchers and catchers last

Rogers will have just three

Tribe Netters Open Practices For Coming Spring Campaign

The tennis team of William and Mary, owners of the National Intercollegiate championship for the past two years, have been working out for the approaching season which will see them attempt to break the all-time national record for consecutive matches won by a college.

Coach Sharvy G. Umbeck's team have won 59 matches in a row over a period starting in 1948. The Indians will open at home March 28 against Dartmouth and will face Cornell in the third and fourth matches of the season, just before spring vacation.

Fred Kowalewski, top nationally seeded player for William and Mary, will play at New York in the National Indoor championships next week, and will get some invaluable play in before the start of the campaign.

The hard-driving senior from Huntington, Mich., is expected to be the top man on the squad, which lost Captain Bernard (Tut) Harston and Bob Doll by graduation. Barton and Kowalewski teamed up to win the intercollegiate doubles crown in Los Angeles last June.

Other veterans on hand from last year are Howie Atwater of St. Paul, Minn.; Bob Glass of Des Moines, Ia.; Brian Mason of Memphis, Tenn., and_chip shooting sixth in most matches. Others include Dick Randall, Lyman Chennault and George Frock, to mention a few.

Since freshmen are ineligible this season because of the Southern Conference's reinstated freshman rule, such outstanding first-year men as Garner Anthony and Tommy Boys will be unable to participate on the varsity team.

Work has been done on the tennis courts, with resurfacing taking place on some of them. The warm weather has enabled the courts to continue along this line, and if it holds up, it may prove a great asset in the early conditioning of the team.

gave in business. His loss will remove one of the most outstanding players ever to play for W&M from the Williamsburg campus.

Virginia Coach Gus Tebell made a rather obvious observation last week when he said that the all-star team needed some team men in addition to the scoring stars. The first squad was composed of three centers and two forwards and was rather poorly balanced, to say the least.

This shortcoming was not the fault of the Associated Press, which gathered the ballots, but rather of the voting coaches who made them. A simple remedy would be for the coaches to be required to pick guards for the guard positions and forwards for the forward slots. A most equitable choice of a meaningful team would thereby be made.

ODK To Remain On Campus; Faculty Wins Court Contest

Saturday night before a packed gym of enthusiastic watchers, the Indian Chiefs, led by "Swishes" Kernodle and "Quick" Sands, took the measure of the ODK "Leaders", in an all-out, no-holds-barred battle royal, by a score of 31-29.

The ODK's had a 14-10 halftime advantage, but Kernodle and Sands, who showed quite a bit of basketball savvy, took charge of a Chief surge, sealing the ball and setting up plays like veterans. Sands led the Chiefs in scoring with eight points.

With about three minutes left to play, ODK's Bob Strickland put a point in the Chiefs, but the team was stopped in the final seconds from tying it up by the close guarding of the Chiefs.

The programs are part of a series of events the Student Religious Union is planning to highlight Religious Emphasis Month.

CHOIR SCHEDULES THREE CONCERTS

A series of three concerts by the celebrated William and Mary Choir, under the direction of Carl A. Feit, assistant professor of mu­sics, have been scheduled here this month as part of the continuing program of special events for vis­i tors to this historic city.

The concerts, an successive Fri­day evening, March 11, 18 and 25, have been arranged at the Recep­tion Center by Colonial Williams­burg.

The famed choir has received national acclaim for its singing in the Paul Green symphonic drama, The Common Glory, presented each summer in Williamsburg.

For the special concerts this month, Director Feit has chosen various religious and secular pieces, some of which are from the Common Glory score. The choir will utilize special presenta­tions for the programs, each of which will be different, and will be dressed in their choral vest­ments. Plaques To Honor College War Dead

Two plaques, commemorating the deaths of William and Mary alumna in World War II, were placed in the War Memorial on April 24. According to Thomas Thorne, associate professor of fine arts, the plaques were designed by Thorne and Singleton Morehead of Colonial Williamsburg. The designs were decided upon on a simple style of lettering to follow through the design on the other commemorations housed there. Actual cutting of the plaques was done by the Charles Drew Company of Boston, Mass.

The World War I Memorial does not contain the official William and Mary coat of arms, but a seal featuring a picture of the Capital Building instead. This is because of the fact that the official seal of the college, which was given at its founding in 1693, was lost. The seal which is displayed on the first plaque is the one which was in use for about a century and was not used again until 1928. The seal is displayed on the War Memorial sports the original, official design.

The first plaque contains 24 names and the record 92. According to Thorne, William and Mary's proportion of boys killed to boys names and the second 92. According to Thomas Thorne, according to Thomas Thorne, William and Mary's proportion of boys killed to boys.

Campus Crossroads

When a freshman at the University of Michigan downed 16 raw chickens last night, an exciting contest was on at once. Somehow Chuck Porter managed to top pepper-sauce swallowing after downing 16-crows, of course. Dr. Waveney Forzyth, director of the University Health Service, wasn't the least bit impressed, however, and called the contest disgusting and silly, adding "Why a hog could eat more than that.

Immediately a new contest, to determine whether a pig can eat more than a man was under way, and was publicized by the students as the "greatest experiment in the world of science." A certain Mr. Will hungry Smith, backed by Jim Dahleen, was to meet a pig, sponsored by Aryan fraternity Sigma Xi, in front of a local restaurant. Before the great encounter could be held, the food was stripped of its supervisory function when it was changed from a branch office to a district office, the insurance collection setup remained.

Term Papers — Pro and Con

A poll at Malacaster College on Friday showed that papers constitute a bane for a large percentage of the students. It is probable that probably not far from those held by William and Mary students, however, respondent to the New York Times. "Too many people find term papers difficult work because of lack of interest in the subject specifically assigned," it "of course. (If the prof takes into account the student in which the paper was written and the understanding of the subject by the student)."

Highlights of the U. of Idaho's annual campus sports drive to raise $5500 is the taxi service offered by fraternities. Brothers lend their cars to pick up students and transport them to classes or town for 10 cents a throw. The campus clown, who probably not far from those held by William and Mary students, however, respondent to the New York Times. "Too many people find term papers difficult work because of lack of interest in the subject specifically assigned," it "of course. (If the prof takes into account the student in which the paper was written and the understanding of the subject by the student)."

But the students, to be presented over the insurance collection setup remained.
