Hunt Selects "Street" Cast

Fehmi, Frevellette Play Lead Roles

Culminating a week of tryouts for men and women of all classes, Miss Alice McMath, head of the Drama Department, announced Saturday the tentative cast of the William and Mary Theatre Company's production of "Quality Street," which will be staged October 21 and 26 in the Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Heading the cast of James M. Barrie's comedy is Janet Fehmi and Fred Frevellette who will take the leading roles of Phoebee and Peter. Mrs. Fehm and Mr. Frevellette have been students in the William and Mary's Junior College and are both expected to graduate in June.

Also, Emiig Stiller, Ben Bray, freshman; Lise, Spier, Osbern Wyno, a junior; the sergeant; Lee, Lively, a junior; William Botton, freshman; and Darnell, Don, seniors.

Miss McMath also stated that the purpose of giving a performance for the benefit of the Phi Beta Delta, which was begun last year, will be continued during this season with an additional presentation October 30.

Theater Open House

Also included in the week's activities will be the opening of the Fine Arts Building, which was the scene of the evening's open house which more than 100 people attended in the Fine Arts Building.

Converse,处处 places, staging and complete sets of the building were a part of the evening's entertainment which ended in the Wren kitchen where refreshments were served and theater talk prevailed.

Flat Hat Tryouts

Try-outs for THE FLAT HAT newspaper staff will be held on Wednesday, October 4, at 7:00 P.M., on the third floor of Marshall Hall.

The editors urge all new students and old, who are interested in doing a little bit of writing, to attend this meeting.

Try-outs will consist of writing a sample article.

What with men in white coats, weird sounds, and even wider looking characters emerging from Phi Beta Kappa Hall during the evening, the casual, uniformed passerby might have taken our nautical ballad for the other with ill-fitting clothes and a head in the know that what came from Phi Beta Kappa was merely the result of a Fine Arts Festival for all freshmen.

Check of the Court Date Monday, the evening, revealed that the casual uniformed passersby might have taken our nautical ballad for the other with ill-fitting clothes and a head in the know that what came from Phi Beta Kappa was merely the result of a Fine Arts Festival for all freshmen.

The following characters as the night dignified judges and the presenting attorney, black-haired and solemn, filed down the aisle to their places on the stage, while Betty Aurell played the foreboding strains of "On the Morgue."

Among the missing was the first defendant, Jermia Valentine, who seems almost as elusive as his more illustrious namesake. Clerk, Frank, then called the case of Freshman Ann Moore and Ann Seib, who were dally, casually sorted out to their places on the stage, while Betty Aurell played the foreboding strains of "On the Morgue."

Dr. Pomfret Speaks At Fall Convocation

Stresses W-M WarFunctions

Two functions of William and Mary during the war, as DSMISIIG by President John B. Pomfret in his address at the 23d Annual Convocation, held Friday morning, September 29, are to help the war effort and to preserve our Liberal Arts Program, which now is more than ever a 'lively, far-sighted and objective.' We must expect changes in any institution with the passage of time, he said, and the secret of survival is the ability to change easily and with the circumstances.

The Convocation started with the introduction of the new faculty, alumni, seniors, and the class singing the William and Mary alma mater by Willlom Williams Miller, Dean of the Faculty, who introduced the administrative team, the heads of departments and the new members of the faculty. In introducing Dr. Pomfret, Dr. Donald Williams, chairman of the organization committee, said:

"We are here today to celebrate that effort of the University."

William and Mary has a record during the war of which any school as small as it may well be proud, said the President. Including the Norfolk and Richmond divisions and the Chaplin's School, the College has increased its enrollment to 5,100 individuals in the past year.

We may expect a struggle at the end of the war between the elements which have been useful during the war and the elements which have been useful. The President pointed out.

The policy of THE FLAT HAT here this college year being stated as "Tai, the other, and the third," the members are to be in the news, sports stories, features, and editorials of future issues.

The primary aim of both the news and sports staff will be to discover and print all possible first-hand news exactly as it happens on the campus. THE FLAT HAT will serve the students as a bureau of fast findings. In addition to complete campus coverage, the news staff will be concerned with student opinions on current national and world affairs.

The policy of the news staff is to be decidedly objective. When facts are uncovered and news is released, there will be no partiality shown to any persons or groups involved; the complete, unbiased story will be reported to the public. By following this line, the news staff believes it can best serve the student body as an instrument for real information and free expression.

Realizing that features should be such as to be of interest to most students, the feature staff will aim to present the type of columns and stories the readers of THE FLAT HAT want. In conjunction with this aim, questionnaires will be given out next week to the student body. In these questionnaires students may state what particularly interests them, and thereby those only those features that have been of interest during the past year will be continued.

The editorial page will be set aside for distinctive opinions on debatable questions. No attempt will be made to pass judgment along from week to week, sidetrack contentiously enough give offense to any interest or prejudice. The editors will have opinions which they will voice and accept the consequences, pleasant or unpleasant.

The editors admit that they will often err and that they may be momentarily unjust or unfair. However, they will always stand ready to do justice and to remedy errors. THE FLAT HAT intends to be a self-respecting paper, appreciating approval, but never hearing it approval.

If students wish to state their opinions, regardless of whether they agree or disagree with the paper, the editors encourage them to write to the sentiments to the editor. All letters will be accepted except those which are libelous or are too long to be suitable for printing. The letters must be signed, although the authors' names will be withheld upon request.

New German Instructor Is Graduate Of Wayne

Bachelor Prof Traveled Widely, Hobbies Include Art, Music, Reading

By CONNIE CONWAY

Fairly tall, nice-looking, with kind brown eyes and an accent that belies his Indiana birthplace and Detroit home, Henry Charles Turk has newly arrived as the College as instructor in German. It could be that the apparent approach of the end of the war in Europe has made for such an increase in the number of German students in the College, or it could be . . . and this is more likely . . . that the popularity of the young professor, and his excellent reputation for teaching, has spread throughout the student body.

Mr. Turk's upitudes for languages goes back to his boyhood, which really isn't so long ago, when he became interested in his father's library of volumes in many languages. His linguistic father taught him German and Latin by the time he was twelve, so his interest in languages continued into college.

Working as an engineer while studying at Wayne University in Detroit, Mr. Turk took his B. A. degree majoring in French and minoring in Economics. Prior to his graduation in 1930, Mr. Turk studied at the Universities of Berlin and Hamburg in Germany. In 1933 Mr. Turk left for Prague to study there. He has traveled extensively throughout Europe, and became of his knowledge of European languages, plus his amicable disposition. Like of people and adaptability, Mr. Turk feels at home almost anywhere.

Later, after his return from Europe, Mr. Turk did graduate work in French, Italian, and German at the University of Chicago, and was offered qualifications for Ph. D. degree in German.

The outbreak of the war in Europe, as many will remember, made Latin, America in language and people very important. Travelling down to Mexico City, Mr. Turk taught English in private schools there, and upon his return in 1942 to the States he was the demand for teachers of Spanish here. He served as a professor of Spanish at Great Lakes College in Detroit until this summer when he was awarded a scholarship by the Government to study Mexican culture at the University of Mexico. From there Mr. Turk came here.

Still when he terms a "happy bachelor," Mr. Turk's most absorbing hobby is drawing either in pen and ink or water colors. He likes music, and reading . . . anything in any language. Best of all, perhaps, Mr. Turk likes -his handkerchief in his breast pocket matched his tie, and though this reporter couldn't wear them, we bet he's socks matched, too.

WSCG Holds First Meeting

Eleanor Harvey, President, opened the first meeting of the W. S. C. G. on Monday, September 25, with a welcome to both old and new students. After the minutes were read and corrected, Eleanor Harvey announced that student government would be collected by the proctors during the next two weeks. She then introduced the speaker, Dr. Grace Warren Landrum.

Dr. Landrum commented on our unusually large women student body and praised the work of the association in previous years. She spoke briefly of some of the college traditions, mentioning the annual Spring Convocation, the Club Day celebration, the Alumni Pilgrimage, the Yule Log ceremony. She closed her talk by asking all women students to drop in and see her from time to time.

Many of the graduates in June were asked to tell a Helen Harper at a glance; they possess that thoroughbred look that marks them unmistakably "America's Best-Loved Classics." See our new collection to come out.

Inquiring Reporter

By GINNY TOWNES

In reply to the question, "How did you feel just a few hours before the first Tribunal," the freshman gave various answers to the Inquiring Reporter.

Mary Miles Cooper . . . "I have a genuine feeling that my attorney is all chumped up."

Barbara Hughes . . . "My best friend me of not supported."

Betsy Gall . . . "I'm not very happy about the whole situation and I don't fulfill the idea of being foolish. Hope the cards aren't stacked against me."

Anne Moote took a philosophical attitude about the Tribunal. "There are two types of restaurants," she said. "One type is children, mood, and eager to serve the appetites; while another type does everything she plans in hopes that she will be called for a large bill. I'm the latter."

Olive Jane Krastell was scared silly.

Patty Young . . . "I'm too busy thinking of a witty remark to toss at the head of the Tribunal to know how I feel."

Peggy Alford . . . "I think I'm going up because a certain upperclassman (the name is Bash-head) assures me of getting his cuts in his month every time he speaks."

Mary McCarthy . . . "I've been Now that the time is nearly here "I've been caught seven times for breaking rules. Now that the time is nearly here, I'm shaking like a lead pipe."

Stefan Mihal insisted, "Unbelievable caught seven times for breaking rules. men will be slightly disappointed in my attitude."

Dorothy Mills claimed to be just plain skeptical.

Cedrick Gall . . . "I hope I see everybody else suffer but myself."

Claver Mathewies, "I'm looking forward to it. I always like to make a fool of myself."

Then there was the girl who was insulted when the gang standing around Ladd Breakfast called her green. The thought green meant fast.

Dean Stresses Teacher Need

According to an announcement from Dean Armstrong, several hundred teachers could have been placed in schools had they been available this year. There is at present a great shortage in the supply of teachers for both elementary and secondary school-children. Shortages are particularly acute for positions in the departments of Science, Mathematics, Secretarial Science and Industrial Arts. There are at present more than a dozen vacancies in high school libraries in the state. There have also been demands for teachers of English, Social Studies and Languages which could not be filled because applicants were not available.

The lack of teachers for elementary grades is very great and in many schools substitute are being employed for the present year. In our school divisions in the defense area, nearly 1000 substitutes are being used at present. This inadequate supply of teachers is likely to continue for several years. Beginning salaries in both elementary school and high school positions vary from $1100 up $1400. Many of the graduates in June were employed at $1200 or $1300 per year.

Ellie Harvey Heads WSCG

Interests Include Music And Travel

The flush of a sunny smile, a quiet voice, a dynamic personality—that is Eleanor Harvey, President of the Women Students' Government. As an outgoing girl, she thrives from one meeting to another in her own discomfort.

Elly hails from Richmond, Virginia, where she was born on May 31, 1925. Others, before her, have recognized her ability by electing her President of Student Government in both grammar school and high school, and selecting her winner of the Balfour Key, for beauty, scholarship, and achievement.

Her interests include music, travel, and people. A French major, Ellie hopes after graduation to secure a job with the Bureau of French Interpretation in Richmond, or study dancing in New York, which thus far has just been a hobby for her.

Four years ago, Ellie arrived at William and Mary as a bewildered freshman, a member of the Class of 1945. Since then her activities have included being president of the first college chapter of the American Red Cross in this country, a member of the French Club, and a member of Orchesis. This year, although busier than ever, as president of WSCGA, president of Delta Delta, and a member of Morris Board, Ellie can still be found in Chapel every Wednesday night, and she's never too busy to stop and talk while dashing from place to place.

New Students Visit Library

Setting a new record for enjoyment within the portals of the stack rooms, library staff entertained more than 400 new students and staff at open house Friday, Sept. 22, as a part of the orientation program.

The first venture of its kind, the open house eliminated the usual drudgery which accompanies library tours with a treasure hunt terminating in the reserve book room where refreshments were served. Proof of the enjoyment of the students was their remark as "Why didn't we do this more often?" "Oo, this is a clever idea!" "I guess I'll come back here soon."

Froshmen and transfer students, accompanied by their sponsors were welcomed by Miss Margaret Galphin, seeing librarian, and then received maps for a treasure hunt. Each guest looked up his book name and author of a book. After the quiz, maps for a treasure hunt and a slip of paper on which was written the name and address of a book. After touring the magazine, reference and stack rooms, each guest looked up his book and after finding the call number proceeded to the stack rooms to file the designated book.

In the pocket of the book he found an invitation to go to the reserve book room for a social hour.

The idea of a library open house had been expressed in the past by Dr. E. G. Swem to both students and faculty and Miss Galphin said that she and the library staff welcomed the opportunity of carrying out its plan, especially during orientation period.

She further stated that more formal lectures and instructions on library procedure would be given to each English section later in the fall.

adult their guilt, and receive their sentence of wearing ribbons in their hair for the next three days. For the first time in the history of the court, Judge Thompson, who presided, announced that the three freshmen whose names were called were the most guilty of wrongdoing that the court had ever known.

As a fine example of the use of the new sentence, the three freshmen were ordered to wear ribbons in their hair at all times. They were also required to wear ribbons in their pockets, and were forbidden to speak to each other. The ribbons were to be worn at night, and were to be removed only when the freshmen were in the presence of the judge.

The freshmen were also ordered to write a letter to the college president, expressing their regret for their actions. They were also required to appear in court every day of the week, and to attend all class meetings. They were also required to wear ribbons in their hair at all times, and were forbidden to speak to each other.

The three freshmen were the first to be sentenced under the new law, which was passed by the college last week. The law provides for a fine of one dollar for each violation of the rules, and for a sentence of wearing ribbons in the hair for a period of three days for each subsequent violation.

Reception Held In Blow Gym

Climaxing almost a week of continuous meetings and orientation activities, the annual President's reception for all new students was given in Blow Gym on Saturday, September 25, at 5:00 P. M.

Gibbs, Galphin, and Armacost, Ryland, Taylor, Clark, Rawlinson, the faculty and their wives were on hand to greet the new students. Many members of the refreshment table where punch and cake were served. Many members of the student body played in giving the new students a warm welcome.

Dr. Head, who introduced each freshman to Ellie Tinker, introduced each freshman to Ellie Tinker, who played piano for the fresh students.

Tommy Dennis's California ballroom band is doing with tremendous success in the last twenty years. The following is a list of the personnel of the band:

So This Is College...

... Shall You Be Disappointed?

"What do I expect from college?" is a question which every college student must ask himself. Unfortunately, one cannot find an accurate answer to it. However, I have found a few.

For one, college is certainly not what it's cracked up to be,—but instead, it has become some sort of social phenomenon. Just a few months ago, college just didn't give them what they had expected. The reasons for this are as numerous as the disappointed students, for each person has his own opinion of what college life should bring to him. Consider the case of a student, just as he hasn't suddenly been turned into a genius. If a student turns out smart, it's because he puts his mind to it; if he has the same pull-out, card games, and water, he's just one of the crowd.

Lyle Threlkeld, Bob Bos, Bob Rea, and Bill Mace should be prevented from disturbing the social order. The sports, dates, dances. Even those who have never been social you will not be disappointed; the College offers education if you will make a complete copy of it. The College offers education if you will automaticall take the first step towards success, instead of sitting at home with your hands full..."

The American Legion Way

O: The American Way?

Both Mr. E. A. Ayers, commanding officer of Pronial's Post, No. 39, American Legion, and Mr. John E. Pomfret of the College have at present no comments to make on the recent resolutions of the American Legion.

These resolutions, opposing employment of conscientious objectors in any capacity at the College of William and Mary, will be presented for discussion at a meeting on October 6 and 7, along with parallel resolutions passed by an organized group whose views oppose those of the American Legion.

Furthermore, you will not lie successful in your field of interest unless you automatically take the first step towards success, instead of sitting at home with your hands full..."

Housemothers Prove To Be Ignorant Of New Rules Of Student Government

By BILL ANDERSON

As the first column appears in the first issue of a new volume, it is conventional, I suppose, for every college student to write a few words about the excitement of the first day. And to all of us, it is excitement, not a glamour of Lana Turner or Ronald Reagen edition. Perhaps the excitement is not as great and with great delight peremptorily to be more naive, his policy. Well, there's no reason to be, and now it's time to start. To the eye, this is by the way..."
