And now I see the paper and

And now I see the paper and

And now I see the paper and

Don't a Love Affair.

The rising sun turned its golden side toward the cottage. The gabled roof caught the warm rays of the morning sun. The glittering light turned the gabled roof into a sparkling molten dome, where the gables stood out like a shining crown. The little cottage was bathed in a warm glow of golden light. The gabled roof shone like a golden dome. The cottage was a perfect little showplace.

The sun was shining brightly in the sky, and the gabled roof of the cottage was bathed in a warm glow of golden light. The gabled roof shone like a golden dome. The cottage was a perfect little showplace.
