Last Saturday marked the first time that William and Mary played in the Big Six. The competition was fierce, as the odds were against the Indians from the start. Despite their lack of experience, the William and Mary football team performed admirably. They played with determination and skill, resulting in a close match that kept the audience on the edge of their seats. However, in the end, the Indians fell short, but their efforts were not in vain. (Continued on page five)

We Must Have A Policy

In regard to an "official" policy, the Executive Board of the Student Body, concerned with the general interest of the College, feel that it is in our best interest to discuss certain vital questions. The various student associations—students, faculty, administration, and alumni,—have definite opinions, so why not put the Flat Hat to work and discuss them all? Presently, our editorial column is devoted to the discussion of current events, but a large part of the opinion expressed in it is not necessarily in accordance with the general sentiment of the student body. The Flat Hat is investigating this situation in the hope of clarifying it and bringing about the establishment of an "official" policy. If you wish to see a student newspaper which still should be a student newspaper, it should express the sentiments of the entire student body. You, the student body, should have a voice in the running of your own newspaper. The Flat Hat is trying to raise the moral, scholastic, and social standards of this college. This, of course, is in keeping with the raising of the college standards, and to this end he cooperated most sincerely with the established authorities for raising the moral, scholastic, and social standards of this college.

...it seems

When Russia and Germany signed their non-aggression pact, many were inclined to ridicules these. The Germans are supposed to be the modern world's top diplomats, and it was often thought that they were too weak to stand up to a neutral power. Jaap ten Oever, a Dutch newspaperman, wrote that the German-Franco treaty meant that Germany would be isolated.

EUROPEAN STUDIES

By Carl Mucke

In 1933, the German people had a very bad case of Melancholia. Mutely did they sit and watch the world go by, and there was no talk of Germany's role in the world at all. When Hitler came into power, he decided to change this. He began by making speeches about how Germany was a great nation, and how she must be respected. This idea was not new; it was the same idea that the Nazis had when they first came to power. But this time, it was much more effective. The world was ready to believe that Germany was a great nation, and so it was easy to make her respected.

RUSSIAN STUDIES

By Carl Mucke

The Russian people were also in a state of Melancholia. They had been through a lot of hard times, and they were not sure that they would ever be able to get back on their feet. But when Stalin came to power, he decided to change this. He began by making speeches about how Russia was a great nation, and how she must be respected. This idea was not new; it was the same idea that the Soviets had when they first came to power. But this time, it was much more effective. The world was ready to believe that Russia was a great nation, and so it was easy to make her respected.

The Flat Hat is investigating the moral, scholastic, and social standards of this college, and to this end he cooperated most sincerely with the established authorities for raising the moral, scholastic, and social standards of this college.
