W. M. R. P. I. Give Concert

William and Mary's Orchestra will present a concert Wednesday, May 15, at 8:15 p.m., in the Livestock Hall.

The program will include the following numbers: Minutes in F Major, Kreisler; All the World's a Stage, in C Minor by Bach, arranged by A. J. Schenck; R. L. A. Serenade No. 1 by Straus; Prelude to The Adam's Apple by Blume, arranged and conducted by A. J. Schenck; and movements from the Italian Symphony No. 1 by Beethoven, arranged and conducted by A. J. Schenck.

The orchestra will be under the combined direction of Woody Herman, Dave Alvin, and George Gersh. Each orchestra worked separately, except for one final joint rehearsal.

Participants for William and Mary are: Violinists--Mrs. D. S. Southwell, Mrs. R. H. Adkins, Barbara Horscroft, Mrs. D. D. Southwell, Carol Collins, Alice Wixom; Soprano--Mary Barnhart; Bass--Dr. H. R. Phares, Albert Haremand, Florence M. R. Morgan, Wills Jones, Pat Haddix, Charlene Hatcher; Baritone--John Brook, Charles Dickey, Dorothy Haddix; Trumpet--Still Wilson.

The attention of all students is directed to the program entitled "Hymns and Naples" appearing on page 62 of the current catalog. The page has been printed incorrectly, the form of the music must be paid by all students, mens and women alike, who wish to reserve the use of the womans' common room or security house for the session of 1946-47.

By action of the Committee on Admissions the final date for the payment of this deposit has been changed from July 1 to June 1. Students who fail to make the deposit of $25.00 before June 1, and who later wish to apply, will be treated as applicants for admission with the recommendation of the college only after the assignments of new students have been made. Some places for this year have already been filled. J. Wilford Lambie, Chairman of the Committee on Admissions.

Letters To The Editor

The following letter was received by THE FLAT HAT in what is hoped, a nationwide contest of college papers. We feel that the special circumstances of Mary are well met by the editorial comment on the letter proper.

The students supported the Finals ticket drive in fine style, for they were interested and wanted to see, what could be done and doing it. However, we didn't do it soon enough and we knew another job that got away from us. Mary's policy is to have a good opportunity to get a good band. We created the President of the FLAT HAT will forward them all together to Woody Herman.

Let's Win A Band!

Dear Editor:

Surely, the one everybody looks to is keeping your College in the spotlight, I'm writing you about an idea that can be the biggest thing that ever happened to your college. The idea is known as the Drama Department.

Your College can have its own Band, flown out to the Campus in a 59-passenger PCA Cargoliner, to play free-of-charge for an end-of-the-semester rally where the whole party for the whole College. If any of the fellows or girls turn out to be the winner of a Win A Band Contest.

Besides, the winner will get a thousand dollars in cash plus an all-starring portable radio. The more students you can get to enter the Win A Band Contest, the better the chances are that the winning band will be in your College. Next year you get started, and that's to get as many students as possible to try to win the "Woody Herman Show." Friday nights over your local American Broadcasting.

We're hoping that someone from your College will be the grand-prize winner. Sincerely,

Woody Herman

State Gypsy Federal Government

To The Editor:

In the section of the current College Catalogue under the heading "State Government," it is stated that the budget for the fiscal year for residents of Virginia is $80.00, while that for out-of-state students is $150.00. In view of the fact that the federal government is required to pay out-of-state students at least 80% of the amount spent, and who, at the same time, are loath to appropriate funds for poor people too, for that matter) and who, at the same time, are loath to appropriate funds for poor people

Advocating Socialism,
Mary Baker Illustrates Primers

"I just lived the typical Andy Hardy type life in high school," said Mary Baker, wrinkling up her nose as she smiled. That was high school in Zanesville, Ohio. Now it's college in Williamsburg, Va., where her friends say she's always "bounding off somewhere."

Mary's been the treasurer of the German Club for two years, on the Scarab Club executive council since her freshman year, a member of the YWCA cabinet for two years, in Student Assembly her junior year, and on the side she's made Phi Beta Kappa.

Mary says, "I practically live for Cricket." Cricket is her dog, "one ear up and one ear down—non-descript, but a darling." She likes to swim very much and as a member of Kappa Chi Marpa, Mary used to belong to a Girl Scout who came up to Jefferson gym every Saturday. Right now the claiming she's a Socialist. "That's because I've been reading so many books on the subject, but it probably won't last," she remarked.

Mary is a fine arts major, and her real love is drawing. According to her, her mother is a painting she did of her roommate this fall. After graduation, Mary wants to illustrate for a publishing company. She did practice work this summer illustrating men's primers. "It was lots of fun," she said, "simple, and it didn't have to be too perfect!"

Around the Alpha Chi Omega house, Mary is known for her sense of humor and the way she runs downstairs. Also everyone in the house is convinced the blue Western manic, especially, "The voice of Saint Antoine." Mary has one particular grievance, "If only people would believe I'm really 21!"

I. R. C. Elects Greg Mann

Choosing Greg Mann president, the International Relations Club held elections at its annual picnic May 3. Greg heads a slate of officers including Peggy Darby, secretary-treasurer, and Scott Murray, social chairman.

Virginia Stephens, senior, serving as president of the club that year.

Freeman Delivers Memorial Tribute

Douglas Southall Freeman, editor, historian, and lecturer, will be the first postwar alumni member of the College to deliver a memorial tribute to John Stewart Bryan at the Alumni Day Luncheon on Saturday, June 8. At least twice previously the Society has invited a non-shoemaker to deliver this traditional oration. Outside of his immediate family, probably no one was more closely aligned with Mr. Bryan than Douglas Southall Freeman, who has edited the Richmond News Leader since 1915 and is currently writing a life history of Mr. Bryan.

Freeman, a native of Lynchburg, received the A.B. degree from Richmond College in 1910 and a Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins in 1919. Few men, not in public life, have acquired as many honors. Becoming associated with the Richmond Times Dispatch in 1919, he became associate editor of the News Leader in 1921 and editor in chief of Richmond Dispatch Co. of editors of Richmond News-Leader, Inc., and vice president of Richmond Radio Corporation.

During his career in editorial work, perhaps best known for his four-volume life of Robert E. Lee, published in 1924 and which won the Pulitzer Prize the same year. In 1943-43 he became editor of the volume work on Lee's Line Covered, which was published in 1943.

W-M Chapter of Legion Presents Dance May 18

The Williamsburg-Maleus Chapter of the American Legion presents the annual dance at its annual picnic May 18. "Final arrangements will be made soon," stated Lou Bailey, public relations director, "and all Ed Travis and the Camp Band will be there for the celebration.

At the chapter's last meeting, the nomination committee chose these officers for the post-officer year. Voting will take place at the next meeting on May 16. The new officers will be named permanent charter from state headquarters within the next 60 days.

Tribe Netters Unbeaten In 21 Straight Matches

By BUD JONES

William and Mary's sensational tennis team hung up their twenty-first consecutive victory as they knocked Miami University from the list of unbeaten teams. The Tribe, however, held their serve to take the game, and, after winning three points, which they were able to win, they lost only three points in another match of two sets, which they were able to win. In this match, the Tribe was up 6-4, after trailing, 2-1.

Bob Gill, playing number two, had a relatively easy time with Jack Corrigan, defeating him, 6-1, 6-4.

Williams and Mary's great tennis squad stretched their winning streak to 20 straight with a 9-0 win over Princeton by 8-1, making a huge success of their first Northern invitational.

Despite the fact that Tut Bartzen didn't play because of his ankle injury and that Bobby Doll was out, the Indians had very little trouble coming back strong to take the next two. George Miller, playing his first singles contest of the year, didn't fare too well downing Barbara Davis 8-6 in the opening set of the third singles. The second set was easier with Bartzen going down 8-4.

Doubles
Coumbe teamed up with Libby Whyte for the first time in the number one doubles team. They captured the first set 6-3, but lack of experience in playing together showed as they dropped the next two sets 6-3, 6-4. Factoring number two doubles, Hunt Cromwell and Mary Oak were defeated 6-2, 6-3.

Misunderstanding
Faram and Davis did not play playing on a misunderstanding arising out of confusion concerning the method of playing. William and Mary played the same girls for singles and doubles, making it confusing. Each team was on the policy of no repeats. Coumbe teamed up with Libby Whyte for the first time in the number one doubles team. They captured the first set 6-3, but lack of experience in playing together showed as they dropped the next two sets 6-3, 6-4. Factoring number two doubles, Hunt Cromwell and Mary Oak were defeated 6-2, 6-3.

Wishing Well Expresses Theme Of Co-ed Dance

At German Club Sponsored Formal

Upon arriving unanimously late at the gym Saturday night, the Camp Peary band found the dancers already there waiting for them. But the German Club dance got into full swing, and, before the end of the evening, over 300 people could be counted.

The gym was decorated in a pink and white motif, with streamers running from the ceiling to the side walls and almost covering the ceiling. At one end of the gym was the handrail which was surrounded with a white trellis on which were pitch pots. At the other end, in front of a lattice of white crepe paper, stood a wishing well and made wishes. By the end of the evening couples threw pennies, nickles and dimes in the wishing well and made wishes. By the end of the evening, over 300 people could be counted.

Last Thursday night the curtain rang down on the William and Mary Theatre season of 1945-46. It was the last play of the year, but it was far from being the best. Let us turn to the play itself. It certainly was not an exceptional selection, but it could be fitted into a factory performance. Maugham, in his great capacity, and then proceeds to overwork it a great deal farther. He strains far beyond the theatre's capacity in attempting to do the play. The first act, so written, commences very slowly but progresses rapidly upward. The second act has a tendency to move at an erratic pace. It is uneven and very badly drawn out. The third act is the best of all. His weakness is in an extremely weak climax. The play should end directly after Victoria's old exit and Victor's new entrance. "Well, shall we go to lunch?" As it is, it is slow and spoil the effect of the play. His characterization will remain imprinted upon the minds of the audience long after the play is forgotten. Too much praise cannot be given him by this critic.

Miss Woodberry's performance, the minor parts were best in the play. I refer specifically to Jill Taylor's short scene as Miss Fagan. Miss Woodberry's performance as the mannequin, Mary McCarthy in her extremely brief scene as Annie the Nurse, and Gina Lewis with her lovely performance in the second act as Miss Montgomery. Dick Bethards also added a rather amusing touch in an otherwise dry and colorless third act. These few brief appearances added a welcome relief to otherwise dull sections.

Gene Black shows definite potentialities. He improved quite a bit on the second night. Sumner Rand, an old actor, was back on the William and Mary stage, was somewhat disappointing. He improved, however, to some degree in the second act.

Walter Weaver gave an adequate performance as William. As for the acting in general, Miss Woodberry had to carry far too much of the burden of the scenes on the whole to make the play much above par. Joe Buchanan was the outstanding performer. Small parts carried all the high comedy. The play as a unit cannot be regarded as anything better than adequate, in my opinion.
