With Homecoming only a little more than a month away, the President’s aides have done nothing to secure an orchestra for the dance on that week end.

Students know from previous experience that good entertainment is usually not obtained in such a short time. The alumni at William and Mary will certainly be expecting a good orchestra and lively decorations. At the aides don’t seem to take on of their chosen responsibilities the most seriously, which is a little disappointing.

As we see it, only the Alumni association has made plans for Homecoming this year. The President’s aides are continually asking for more efficiency on the part of the administration, but most of the time the students themselves show the most indifference. If the President’s aides were not so busy with other duties of their office, they might have time to decide on a concert, or something which would stimulate the students.

No matter how the band is played, the students who want to attend the dance must be sure to have tickets. A few days more will bring the tickets, and all who wish to go must get them. The President’s aides have not yet announced whether they will sell them online, or at the door.

A lively discussion of the student government this week concerned the possibility of securing an orchestra for the Homecoming dance. The President’s aides have done nothing to secure an orchestra yet, and students are beginning to feel the need for entertainment.

VA Asks Vets To Report New Changes Of Address

G. I. students were asked today to be sure to notify the Veterans administration promptly whenever they change their address.

Failure to notify the VA of a change of address may mean that the veteran’s subsistence check will be delayed in reaching him, the VA explained. Keeping the organisation posted on address changes will help this agency in its efforts to get the checks to veterans on time.

With thousands of ex-service men and women enrolling in colleges and universities this fall, the VA announced that veterans should not count on receiving their first checks before early November. These checks, however, should include subsistence allowances due through October.

This time lapse between enrollment and the receipt of the first check involves two factors. First, a veteran generally is not entitled to receive a subsistence allowance until he has been in enrollment and the receipt of the first check of the month, covering the latter part of the month.

The group has decided to implement the business end of the section with an evening of entertainment, to be held in Phi Beta Room, next week. Pictures of last year’s show, "The Heat’s On," will be displayed and refreshments will be served on stage.

Ritsue Anderson will do her favorite number in the show, "The Heat’s On." Stache will present "The Heat’s On," and Bill Flux and his band will be on hand for entertainment, to be held in Phi Beta Room, next week. Citadel Offers First Home Opposition For Braves

The Southern Conference football season is getting under way very much like the carefully drawn pre-season diagrams which bedeck the offices of coaches and sports editors. The usual crop of old masters, Alabama, Georgia and Vanderbilt, are at it again, with slightly below par teams. One of the novelties of the year with two old masters, Alabama and Georgia contest, Snavely's team, is the Citadel. Still building, the Bulldogs have some distance to go.

Going to work with only a nickel, the Bulldogs have some distance to go. Later, when Pupa applied basketball tactics of "freezing" the ball just before the buzzer, we cannot guarantee complete without predictions of the first team then returned for just one play, long enough for quick 1947.

Fehr Reports On Choral Auditions

Auditions for the various choral organizations have gone very well during the first week, according to Carl A. Fehr, assistant professor of fine arts and director of the groups. "We have found very fine singers among those who have held their auditions," stated Fehr. "I'm sure that there are still many who would like to sing, but who have not come to my office to see me. Transfers from St.Iruins and the Fairlack divisions, who sang in the choirs at those places, have not auditioned, and I urge them to come to my office right away." Fehr declared that he was very pleased with the interest shown by the freshmen in the choral groups.

Auditions will continue during this week for all students who do not attend the initial auditions. Appointments may be arranged in Fehr's office in the music building. After this week, membership in the choral groups will be closed for the semester.

Wives of new family members and women newly appointed to the teaching staff of the college will be guests at a tea given by Fehr's office in the music building.

Senior Meet Wednesday

Tuesday, Oct. 7, in the Apollo room of Phi Beta Kappa hall at 7 p.m. The assembly, composed of the members of the Student Senate and six representatives from each class, will meet on the first Tuesday of every month during the school year.

Tug-Of-War To Highlight Senior Meet Wednesday

A tug-of-war contest will highlight the senior class torchlight meeting at the end of the summer gardens on Wednesday, Oct. 7, at 7:30 p.m., President Roy (Bunny) Ash announced last week. "The team of seniors and the class of '48 have entered a tug-of-war contest in the athletic field. The plan is tentative, and is pending the approval of various authorities."

Preceding the contest there will be a short meeting of the class club. Torches will be used for illumination, and President Ash has promised that the meeting will not last longer than 30 minutes.

Clubs Officers

The other club officers, Robert Thomas Hewitt, vice-president; Alan Morgan, secretary-treasurer; and Anne Andrews, treasurer, met last Wednesday to formulate plans for the coming year. "Tentative plans were made for a homecoming float, the purchase of a class banner, and the possibility of making this year's Barefoot Ball, which the class of '48 has made famous, the biggest and best yet," said Ash.

Suggestions were also made for the selection of the class gift, but further action was postponed until the meeting of the newly-organized alumni committee. This committee is composed of ten men and ten women from the alumni class, the members of which have not been chosen as yet.

Fehr Calls For Efficiency In Work Of Student Body

Former presidents passed on knowledge that can be learned only by experience, so as to enable the new leaders to stand on firm ground. The class presidents hope by this means to increase class spirit and introduce inter-class competition. Charles P. McCurdy, Jr., secretary of the alumni association, also contributed to the discussion.

The first meeting of the Student Assembly will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 7, in the Apollo room of Phi Beta Kappa hall at 7 p.m. The assembly, composed of the members of the Student Senate and six representatives from each class, will meet on the first Tuesday of every month during the school year.

Library Receives Donation Of Rare Augustinian Work

Dr. Edwin E. Willoughby, chief bibliographer of the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D. C., has recently presented the College Library with a volume by St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo, entitled Expositio In Omnes Pauli Epitolas. It has contemporary illumination and ornamental initials, with the printer’s mark appearing on the title page.

The volume is a late production of Gering, the first printer, not only of Paris, but also of France, at his third press, in partnership with Rembolt. It is a compilation of all the writings of St. Augustine which bear upon the 17th and 18th century St. Paul.

The library copy is highly decorated. It is a compilation entitled Expositio In Omnes Pauli Epitolas. The use of the printer’s facilities requires such a compilation on the part of the user to do his own printing and to be responsible for any damage that may be done beyond normal wear and tear. Where this area has not been properly policed, the college will expect reimbursement for the extra expense to which it has been put for the repair of damage. In most cases, future use of the facilities will be denied.

Radio Club Members To Hold First Meeting

Members of the Radio club will hold their initial meeting to-morrow at 7 p.m. in the Dodge room of Phi Beta Kappa hall.

All students who are interested in radio, whether members of the club or not, may attend the meeting. Last year the club presented weekly shows from the compact over stations WVRN in Richmond, ranging from comedy to interviews. These programs may be revived this year.

In addition to its weekly broadcasts, the club hopes to continue other interesting activities and radio work toward the establishment of more adequate facilities.

Jeffers Announces Hours For College Gym

Dr. Katherine R. Jeffers, dean of women, has announced that the gym may not be decorated until Nov. 23. The gym may not be decorated until the area is properly policed, the college will expect reimbursement for the extra expense to which it has been put for the repair of damage. In most cases, future use of the facilities will be denied.

Tryouts For Royalist Will Begin This Week

Freshman and sophomore tryouts for the men’s and women’s basketball teams will begin this week and last through Nov. 30.

Maigill, editor of the literary magazine, stated that the basketball team may be purchased from the Royalist box on the first floor of Marshall Wythe hall. Students are asked to turn in the best articles, preferably their own, and a criticism of each.

The winner will be announced this week. They are those that win the best articles, preferably their own, and a criticism of each.

Deadline for material for the tournament will be 5 p.m. the day before the tournament begins.
