Most Voters Cast Ballots Against No Smoking Rule
Poll By Student Government Shows 81 Per Cent Disapprove Measure

By Eva Raffae

Eighty-nine per cent of the 1057 students who voted in the poll conducted last Wednesday voted against the no-smoking proposal. The faculty committee, in its report, recommended that the proposal be sent to the student government to vote on the bill itself. The committee believed that the proposal was being misused and that the committee was being allowed to look into "undesirable" matters, such as smoking, in the classroom in an attempt to "distract" attention from more valid issues. The committee wanted the bill to be sent to the student government to allow for a proper vote on the issue.

Runners Canned Feeding
A spokesman for the faculty who preferred not to have his name disclosed, told reporters that the bill should be sent to the student government because it was not within its jurisdiction to handle such matters. The spokesman cited the need to prevent the committee from being allowed to look into "undesirable" matters, such as smoking, in the classroom.

Faculty Has Agreed
The faculty has generally agreed about the principles of the bill and even those who voted against it (10 per cent of the 70-member faculty) felt that the committee was being allowed to look into "undesirable" matters, such as smoking, in the classroom in an attempt to "distract" attention from more valid issues. The committee was not within its jurisdiction to handle such matters, the faculty members felt.

The question naturally arises as to what will be the "decent" room and whether the laboratories, which do not get the multiple use of the classrooms, are also veterans. Two of the men in high positions, Dr. John Oliver Nelson, and Dr. Robert E. Lieb, have been vets and have worked in the government to the nation. Some of the factors which have contributed much to the success of government interference in industry are the rewards expected from men of integrity, and the great amount of work which the industrialists have been able to accomplish with the help of government.

By Bill Green

Speaking at the first meeting of the Marshall-Wythe Seminar this Friday, E. J. Robeson, vice-president and personal manager of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, spoke out against government interference in industry and discussed the changes which have been made by American industrialists during the past two years. He stressed that the cooperation of American industry and government has increased the production of the nation.

Seminars to consider the above issues, which have been made by American industrialists during the past two years, will begin on March 11, 12 and 13.

To attend the seminaries, a total of 188 men from an annual conference of the Northern District and seven-tenths per cent of the entire student body cast votes. The faculty committee, in its report, recommended that the proposal be sent to the student government to vote on the bill itself. The committee believed that the proposal was being misused and that the committee was being allowed to look into "undesirable" matters, such as smoking, in the classroom in an attempt to "distract" attention from more valid issues. The committee wanted the bill to be sent to the student government to allow for a proper vote on the issue.

Manos, McCarthy Comment Study Of Macbeth Roles
By Ronald Kline

Aging the greatest challenges of their dramatic careers, John Manos and Mary McCarthy have undertaken intensive characterization studies of the roles of Macbeth and Lady Macbeth for their forthcoming Shakespearean tragedy. The aspiring arts major from Minneapolis, has served in many capacities, on stage and backstage, for a host of local theater productions. A 4.0 student, she was graduated magna cum laude from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C., on Thursday, February 24, 1948.

Veterans dominate dean's list

Veterans students hold an edge in academic achievement over non-veterans students during the past semester, according to figures released by John E. Kieholt, dean of men.

The total number of veterans enrolled, 15 per cent of the total student body, was contrasted to the 15 per cent of non-veterans who achieved the honor. Ten of the 11 men who have made straight A's and are also veterans.

A breakdown of the dean's list by class shows that 51 were seniors, 48 juniors, 55 sophomores, 25 freshmen and 12 graduate students.

Note the requirements for dean's list membership. Of those on the dean's list is 144 per cent, a 2.8 drop from last semester's 156 per cent.

Seven students who graduated this month with average placement scores on the dean's list, and who did not enter the Army, are Frank Emmerson, William Ceiser, Athanas S. Archilaidis, Donald Taylor, Robert Jorg, and Daniel Wilson.

March comes in like a lion—

With March and a revival of the outdoors, the planting season begins, and the warm weather brings a sense of renewal and growth. This month, the campus community DT is the recent meeting of the General Co-operative Association. This year we look at some of the issues they discussed and why they are important.

The importance of sorority leaders

There is a tendency among the college community to over-value the role of sorority leaders. However, the qualifications required for them are not always clear. These qualifications, combined with a lack of recognition for the work of sorority leaders, can contribute to burnout and a lack of fulfillment.

March Brings WSCG Elections

With the coming of spring each year, this paper ALWAYS runs a editorial concerning the importance of student government. The editors remind our readers that we dislike writing these "standing articles" more than the subscribers' hate reading them. But duty demands that we do it.

Letter To The Editor: The Flat Hat Neglects To Give Credit To Alumni

This is a message to the Flat Hat's editor. I am writing this on behalf of the Alumni Board to bring certain matters to your attention.

The issue of June 6 becomes known to the public only because of a shortage of funds. To prevent similar incidents, the Board therefore approved unanimously the undersigned resolutions for the purpose of sending the team to the games in June.

Unfortunately, the college community DT is the recent meeting of the General Co-operative Association. This year we look at some of the issues they discussed and why they are important.

Letters To The Editor Criticize Officers, Flat Hat's Treatment Of Smoking Story

To the Editor:

It was stated in the Flat Hat on February 17 that at the meet­ing of the Senior Class plans were made to petition the Committee on Special Events to hold graduation exercises in Matoaka Park instead of in front of the Wren Building. The undersigned members of the Class of 1948, who attended the meeting, remember no such action being agreed upon. The position of where the graduation exercises would be held was discussed very briefly, and it is our opinion that there was as much sentiment in favor of the Wren Building at that time as there was for the simplicity. No motion or resolution on the matter was made.

There has been a tendency on the part of the officers of the Senior Class to take unilateral ac­tion on matters affecting the class without consulting the class as a whole. Such action is thoroughly out of accord with the spirit of student government and democracy? If a minority of the class are to make decisions without the approval of the class as a whole, then meetings such as the one held on February 10 are super­fluous.

We demand that no action on a petition to the Committee on Special Events be taken until the Class has voted that such action be taken, and we ask for an explanation from the Class officers as to why this announcement was made in the Flat Hat when no formal action by the Class has been taken.

Yours truly,
John H. Fritz

To the Editor:

A certain interlude in the middle of the winter routine of local academic life was furnished last week by the leading news article in the Flat Hat. Mr. Paul Carre’s de­lightful jibe suggests that he may have become a master of prose irony. But it is thesjorgan’s ar­gument against Abolishing Chris­tianly performed the trumps of Le Dorsine, and a cleat slot cre­ated such confusion; not since Swift’s Meditation upon a Broom­stick has so trivial a matter been magnified by such eloquence. Particularly stiffly were the mon­ologues imagined for Mr. Thomas Aver and Mr. John Dayton, al­though it seems, perhaps, a little cruel to assign to follow student-fights remarks of such insipid­ness. One may "may become a master," for there are, by Mr. Carre’s article frequent moments when the reader is uncertain—whether the pretentiousness and confusion are effects of act or word. But one must admire the immaturity those faults of style and that occasional petulance of tone which rise up. Moreover, the editors of the Flat Hat are to be complimented on their timing of the release, for the mel­lowness of the burlesque was in keeping with the premature warnings of that many February 18. They are to be thanked, too, for providing the only kind of article that could arouse their con­temporaries from the lethargy that the unreasonable winds induced. And finally all your readers are grateful that you furnished to Mr. Ronald Kling a theme that he handled with his incomparable gift­enewtageshine.

But the amusing tone of irrit­ating excitement that Mr. Carre, especially through his characters, brings to stimulate and delight his readers seems unfortunately to have been taken seriously by a few, and indeed to have been imitated without an equal measure of good temper and good judgment. Some have gone so far as to sup­pose that the faculty resolution was designed as a tyrannical en­croachment on their rights, and not, as indeed it was, to deepen in them a sense of pride in the Col­lege of William and Mary, to heighten, that is, if I may apply a popular if meaningless phrase, their school spirit. The cooler of maturity, and maturer judgment of most, however, must have seen that there is from the resolution a gain every way to the student body. For a minority (and who in a democracy will not respect the interests of a minority? To the Editor:

The headline "Armstrong Leaves Miss Author" appearing over the Flat Hat story covering faculty action in smoking in classrooms is misleading on two counts. (1) One would be led to believe that I had disclosed this information. The authorship of the res­olution was known to many students before my statement to the Flat Hat.

(2) One might conclude that I disapproved of the action taken by Mr. Moss. On the contrary, I believe that in view of the find­ings expected by the Committee on Student Use of Classrooms for Study Purposes any member of the faculty would have been justified in making this resolution. Responsibility is shared equally by every member who voted for it. I was one of these.

I believe the resolution is lack­ ing in detail and that it can be administered with less confusion if this is supplied before it becomes effective.

Very truly yours,
A. R. Armstrong

Wilson's Squad Battles VMI At Lexington In Loop Game

Two Southern Conference games remain on the William and Mary basketball schedule, and by the way both, Saturday's William and Mary team would stand an excellent chance of being invited to the Southern Conference tournament scheduled for March 6 and 7 in Richmond. Tonight, the Braves play Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and they return to Williamsburg for the season's finale at Blow Gym Saturday 8 P.M. against the University of Richmond.

William and Mary hold victory over both teams, having taken a 90-76 victory over the Magnolias and a hard-fought, 77-72, win from the Spiders just before Christmas. Some home court advantage was lost by the Magnolias as the home court advantage was lost by the Magnolias as the

At the last women's student government meeting, it became evident, when the students left after the meeting, that the idea of a WAA meeting, that the women students did not realize that they were all members of the WAA. This has probably been the fault of the council. That was one of the main reasons for President Jane Beatty's speaking at the WSOA meeting last week. The council has formed the policy of having students informed about the WAA. Women's Athletic Association up to entering the college. She pays an athletic fee along with her tuition, which she gets to see the football players, make a great and unexpected contribution to college life and to the school itself. The arrangement accepted by the Southern Conference is quite reasonable and sensible, but probably will not prove workable until the majority of women students who have expressed their lack of understanding of the WAA will begin making stuffed animals and other productions and some others in school will make just the piece of jewelry that they want for a reasonable price.
Library Displays Exhibit Of Books As Part Of Religious Emphasis Day

As a part of the program of Religious Emphasis Day on Sunday, February 26, the library has prepared an exhibit of religious works from the rare book collection. The exhibit is centered around the Holy Bible, and contains Hebrew, Greek and Latin texts upon which our modern English versions are based. The focal point in the display is the closed copy of the 1611 edition of the King James’ version of the Bible.

Other volumes trace the development from the Wythoff single to the Revised Standard edition of 1946, and includes the Douay version and Monseigneur Knox’s translation of the New Testament. Literature from each of the groups participating in the Student Religious Union, and other religious organizations of the community, has been selected for display. Sermons of Conestoga, James Blair, Reverend Jarrett, Samuel Davies and other noted Virginians are included.

One section is devoted to religious organizations of American origin, with rare and valuable editions of Science and Health, by Mary Baker Eddy; The Sacred Writings of the Apocalypse (Babylon, Va., 1831), by Alexander Campbell; and The Book of Mormon (Palmer, 1839), by Joseph Smith, Jr. Books from the Hecked Press, in the Valley of Virginia, represent the churches of the early German immigrants to Virginia.

Devotional books appropriate to Lent, historically noted religious tracts, and the modern trends in theology from the books of recognized Jewish, Roman Catholic and Protestant authors complete the exhibit.

He closed his address last Wednesday.

Dr. Oliver also stated that "in this past 40 years we have come far in establishing elementary schools, high schools, colleges and universities, and still there is unfinished business. However, this is no cause for discouragement, for it provides challenge and impetus for living."

In conclusion he stated "the finest thing your dearest friend could wish for you is that throughout your life you will have in your hand some unfinished business."

VA Regulation Qualifies Veterans
To Limited Time Training Program

A new regulation issued by the Veterans Administration extends to all World War II veterans qualification for training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act (Public Law 14) the reduced-time training program previously limited to two groups of disabled veterans.

These two groups were composed of veterans whose disabilities would not interfere with their previous employment or training and veterans suffering from arrested pulmonary tuberculosis.

Any seriously disabled veteran unable to devote as many hours per day to training as the ordinary veteran trainee does, may qualify for reduced-time training under specified conditions. They are as follows:

1. The VA medical consultant determines that the nature of the trainee's disability will not permit him to devote as many hours per day to training as the ordinary veteran trainee does.

2. The veteran's individual training program requires an average number of hours per day for training as the medical consultant determines his disability will permit.

3. There is good prospect that the veteran's work tolerance will remain constant for a suitable employment objective than if he were not taking any training.

4. The hours of the reduced-time training program will be increased gradually as the veteran's work tolerance increases until he is taking a normal training program.

Expert medical service must be sought before any increase is made in the number of training hours. The first increase in training hours must be made within three months after the veteran enters the reduced-time training program.

These disabled veterans whose work tolerance does not increase after three months will be withdrawn from training under the new program and considered for training under the former reduced-time standards which still prevailed.

These standards require that the amount of time devoted to training must be as great as the medical consultant determines a veteran's disability ever will permit. The course is regarded as full-time training if it will restore the veteran's employability; if it can be completed in the statutory time; and if there is no other appropriate course to which the invalid can apply a greater amount of training time.
