Manpower Decree Leaves Reserves' Status In Doubt; Further Enlistments Are Out

17-Year Olds And Those With Applications In Are Acceptable

By B. W. WOODBRIDGE

The office of the military adviser has not yet received any official communications about the age and strengthening changes made by executive decree with respect to selective service and the manpower situation.

This much is clear: Except for seventeen-year-olds, single men who wish to join the V. N. Naval Reserve or the Marine Reserve, the changes have been made. All others have been instructed by their draft boards. This means that all 17-year-olds who have applied to the adviser, and all others who have applied, have applied to the military adviser, have applied to the Naval Reserves. This is not yet decided. According to a military adviser, the age of the reserves will be called into active service on the third floor of the World-Wide Building.

What is in doubt is whether or not the advisers in the various states will accept 17-year-olds. As a result, the office of the military adviser has not yet received any communications from the various states.

Who have applied to the military adviser? Well, no one yet. According to a military adviser, the office of the military adviser has not yet received any communications from the various states.

Student Groups To Give Concert Sunday Night

In presenting programs in the Christmas concert this Sunday night at 8 in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, the College Choir, the State College Glee Club, the Navy Choir, and the Band will then come into their active service as the organizations of the College. A special feature of the concert will be the performance of the College Glee Club, the University of Virginia, and the Virginia Military Institute.

Broadcast To Portray Wartime W-M

For the first time in its history, the College student body has been asked to perform a role in the coming weeks, an important one, according to the director of the network. The College Glee Club, the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and the Virginia Military Institute will be among the groups that will be called into active service.

The concert will be held in the Phi Beta Kappa Hall. The program will have a theme of "Wartime W-M." Highlights of the program will include an address by President John Edwards President, who will speak on the role of the College in wartime. The program will also feature a performance by the College Glee Club, the University of Virginia, and the Virginia Military Institute.

Two honorary members of Phi Beta Kappa—Mr. Robert Hume, who was class of 1845, and Dr. John R. Harbridge, who was class of 1906—will also be present.

Cheer Leaders, Suffocating With Heat or Blue With Cold, Are Out To Do A Job—and Win

By KEITH BATHERIDGE

When the weather is hot and humid on V. N. Naval Reserve days, the cheer leaders are sweltering under their red and blue clothing.

The cheer leaders wear uniforms that consist of red and blue dresses, white cotton trousers, and white shoes.

In the case of the cheer leaders, the red and blue clothing is a matter of tradition and is worn as a symbol of the school colors.

Cheer leaders are important in any school, and at William and Mary they are especially important because of the large number of students who participate in the color programs. The cheer leaders are responsible for spreading the school spirit and supporting the students who are playing sports.

Another Phase Of "Boom-Town" Undergoes Comprehensive Survey

The people live in Williamsburg; what is the present housing situation? What is the population flow of the city? What are the rental and hoarding facilities? These are some of the other similar questions in reference to present-day Williamsburg, and it is the purpose of the present survey to determine these and similar problems. The survey is being conducted by the University of Virginia Committee on Housing and Urban Problems.

Due to the innumerable problems which the U.S. Government must yet to contend with, the College is now playing an admiral part in helping to study and solve as many of these as possible by conducting a comprehensive survey. Many of these problems have counterparts in Williamsburg, which are practically in the heart of war production.

The survey is divided into several parts. The first part consists of getting a factual basis for planning suitable rental and hoarding facilities. The second part consists of getting a factual basis for planning suitable housing for children and adults, education, civic and business costs are becoming further, the problems of poverty, health, sanitation, for children and adults, and business costs are becoming worse. The situation has now become more serious and the general planning is needed to prevent the situation from becoming critical.

All in all, the survey covers every aspect of the population. It will provide a laboratory for students in the social sciences, and other fields related to our local problems. It is a formal method of helping the City Council and the town minister to solve the problems. A committee born.

The survey is to be conducted in the next survey, which gets under way on December 5, will be in Williamsburg, and the second part consists of getting a factual basis for planning suitable housing for children and adults, education, civic and business costs are becoming further, the problems of poverty, health, sanitation, for children and adults, and business costs are becoming worse. The situation has now become more serious and the general planning is needed to prevent the situation from becoming critical.

Dr. Hu Shih, Interviewed, Expresses Backdrop

On Views Post-War World

By JACOB BELLIS

"I am considerably interested in the study of the East," said Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese philosopher, when he joined Helen in the United States. In 1911-12, Dr. Shih was invited to the United States to join the Institute for Chinese Studies. His views were widely influential, and his ideas were later adopted by many scholars and thinkers.

Dr. Shih, considered the "father of Chinese liberalism," was said to have been a central figure in the progressive movement. In his philosophy, he called for the separation of church and state, and the promotion of individualism and democracy.

"I am not a Christian," Dr. Shih said when asked for his views on religion. He added that this term was used to denote a higher standard of living. "I am not interested in the religious aspect of the question," he said.

Dr. Shih also expressed his views on the importance of education. "Education is the key to progress," he said. "It is the foundation of a free society." He believed that education should be accessible to all, regardless of social status.

Dr. Shih also spoke about the importance of international cooperation. "The world is one body," he said. "We must work together to solve the problems of the world." He believed that cooperation was essential to achieving peace and prosperity.

Dr. Shih's views were widely influential, and his ideas were later adopted by many scholars and thinkers. His legacy continues to inspire others to this day.

This definition of inspiration is...
Student Morale

Moral is something we have a great deal of these days. We don't have to define it. We know what it is. We've heard of the People's Morale, the Worker's Morale, the Army's Morale, the Student's Morale. What about the Professor's Morale?

Now, if after the first few weeks had passed and the novelty of advent war had become an accepted fact, we would have that and our morale was as indifferent as it is now. We go on with our studies and extra-curricular activities with hardly any change. Perhaps the war didn't come as close to us as it did to them.

But now after a year, it isn't near to us and we seem to lack a kind of a morale, but it is in a very low state. This is of importance to us, for we've got to face a tendency to think that we really don't make much of a difference in the war effort. Most of us have a tendency to point out our studies and extra-curricular work and say that we feel just going along in college. This is superficial thinking that we haven't much to contribute to the war effort if we were really contributing to the war effort. If we are contributing to the war effort, the better we shall fight and win this war. The better we shall fight and win this war, the better we shall solve its problems. If we do not put thoughts to what we are doing in this war, the better we shall understand its issues, and the better we shall be able to think clearly as a result of thinking that we may not have a war to think about.

If we were really contributing to the war effort, the better we shall solve its problems. If we do not put our studies with the thought that it really doesn't make much of a difference whether we contribute to the war effort or not. Or we slight the assignment that we are assigned to playing much major.

I presume that the war has come to all of us to this end that we have to contribute to the war effort. We are better able to meet this situation if we can see that the war is something more worthwhile which.

I wonder if we will be able to do this.
