Joins Psychology Staff

Mary, Dr. Ledgerwood was happy to see the familiar face of Dr. Richard C. Ledgerwood, new acting professor of Psychology.

Dr. Ledgerwood was employed in war research at the University of Illinois where he received his doctorate. Two years ago he taught Psychology at the University of Southern Oklahoma, and at Ohio State University before coming here. William and Mary, Dr. Ledgerwood was employed in war work in St. Louis.

Upon entering William and Mary, Dr. Ledgerwood was greatly surprised to find such a well equipped psychology department. He believes that the College has come a long way, and should be given wider acclaim.

In his spare time Dr. Ledgerwood enjoys listening to "Fibber McGee and Molly" on the radio, or watching TV. He especially enjoys "I Love Lucy" and his favorite film team. His hobby is Iris breeding, but he says that he has had more success with his dog. Patsy, of an unusual variety called a Pom, than with his flowers. Comments from the upperclassmen have been heard on the attendance of the freshmen during the last two days, but here are the students’ answers to "How do you like your "Dr. Jerkyll" role on Monday and Tuesday as prescribed by the Tribunal at the dinner table?"

"Tusa Wilson—I could take it. It was all a howl except that half of my face feels like shoe leather and my right arch has fallen.

Ken Scott—Since that time, I’ve been able to show off my pretty garters.

"Bob Galloway—I felt like a clown with half my mouth painted red."

"Jan Newell—I felt like a male Gypsy Rose Lee.

"Paul Bartow—it wasn’t bad. I didn’t mind it.

"Helga Dean—After Monday and Tuesday, I feel qualified to pose for those "five-whey cream" ads."

Walking across the campus, book in hand, is no doubt the most popular method. Absorbed in the intricacies of missing cobwebb, the student may find time to greet many of his friends while concentrating on his book. The study-while-flossing-in-the-center of knowledge of gymnastics, if the student completes the required requirements by the time he is dressed, he is completely fatigued for the day.

"The last and definitely the most difficult and most remarkable method is the one in which the student is sitting on a straight- back chair in a nearly arranged desk, with a student lamp over his head. The student is usually ignored by the more sensible students, because, after all, no one has ever seen him under these conditions. The ambitious student, however, has made it a mission to hold a student lamp in this position for two or three hours."

It is hoped that this outline may help any forthcoming scholar learn how to be successful in studying.

Studying is one of those abstract things which we, as college students, are supposed to spend our time doing. Of course, this involves many problems which must be dealt with systematically. There are many ways in which to study but after careful research only five basic methods are found to yield the best results for concentration.

The first of these is the reciting position in which the book is held in the left hand, page numbers and legs, as long as books methods may prove more desirable. The killing-two-birds-with-one-stone method is carried out in the dining hall while standing in line. Here the student finds the quiet and the cultural background of personality.

Freer Directs Dramatics Of First Grade Children

Chairman Of Honor Council Dubbed "Committeewoman" By Many Friends

Since her freshman year, Jan Freer, chairman of the Honor Council and vice president of Mortar Board, has had an impressive host of campus activities. She is jokingly called by her friends, "the commitment queen." While in high school, Jan was chosen personage queen of the Ashland High School, and entered into class plays and school dramatizations, as well as the choir and student assembly work. As a college student, she co-founded a cheerleaders club at the Matthew Whaley school where she instructs the first grade drama class. She is now dramatizing "Little Black Sambo." Jan's interests are as varied as her activities—she is taking three sociology courses, abnormal psychology, and elementary education. Her class is now dramatizing "Little Black Sambo." Her freshman year, in her junior year, she was chosen representative to the Student Assembly for two years and secretary to the Student Assembly for three years. She is also a member of the Senior Nominating Committee, Committee on Intelligentsia and Community, the committee on Art, Lectures, and Music. She is pledge supervisor for Pi Beta Phi Fraternity. For the past two summers, Jan has been a member of the Nursery School in Ashland, Ohio, a place where the nurses of the war workers during the day. This summer, she divided her time between reading and attending the weddings of her friends.

Committee Holds November Dance

Preliminary plans for a student dance sometime in November sponsored by the Student Dance Committee have been reviewed and approved by the faculty advisors to this committee.

Undecided between the alternative date of Thanksgiving weekend or a weekend later in December, the committee is having difficulty in securing a large dance band. Marilyn Wood, chairman, has charge of getting the band and she is investigating to find out what bands will be in this section around the date of the dance.

The committee has assets amounting to $1410 with which to operate the dance.

Members of the Student-Faculty Committee are Dr. Harold R. Phlue, Miss Margarette Wynne-Roberts, Allen C. Stewart, Marilyn Wood, Tomm Smith, and Tink Robinson Moore.

Bible Unit Studies

St. John's Gospel

Mrs. William Leake, a student worker, is in charge of the United Bible Study group tonight at 9:00 p.m. in Chamber's living room. Mrs. Leake will speak to the students every two weeks on the Bible Unit studies.

The members are now studying the Gospel according to St. John. When Mrs. Leake is not visiting, members of the organization will take turns leading the discussion. At these meetings various individ¬ ual opinions will be given and discussed.

The United Bible Study is a nonsectarian group and was or¬ organized on campus last year by Margaret Dykes. The sponsor of the group last year was Dr. H. A. Freeman, but as yet a faculty ad¬ visor has not been chosen for this year. The chairman is Mildred Gale.

The purpose of this organization is to make an objective study of the Bible in an informal manner.

Dancers Compete in Group Tryouts

First tryouts for the Dance Club were held on Tuesday, October 16, in Jefferson gym. Second tryouts were held on the following Thursday and final tryouts were held last night.

Candidates for membership must have had some dance training, preferably a term of modern dance at either William and Mary. The tryouts are made by the Dance Club under the advice of Miss Helen Black, physical education dance instructor.

Carolyn Thomas is president of the club and Miss Anne Prine is secretary-treasurer.

Future plans of the club include a dance recital in the spring. The group will start working on this project immediately with meetings twice weekly for an hour. All dance composition is done by the club members. There will also be a spring picnic.

A matter of great absorption is Mary Bellair's return from overseas who called her three times, couldn't reach her, so sent a telegram. Hoping that the full moon will have some results.

Theater Play Opens Tonight

In a production of the play around Christmas in New York, although written in 1912 the play is entirely contemporary, according to Miss Mosca.

All members of the cast had previous experience in the William and Mary Theatre with the exception of Walter Higgins, who is a freshman, Phyllis Palmer, and Tom Marsden. Marjorie Wynkoop played the role of "Mosca" in last year's production of "You Can't Take It with You."

The plot comes from a Greek mythical character, Pygmalion, who created a statue of a girl and then fell in love with her. In the play, the Higgins becomes bored with the experiment and attempts to train her and pass her off as a duchess! When this is achieved Mr. Higgins becomes bored with the experiment and takes the cockney flower girl, Eliza Doolittle, and attempts to train her and pass her off as a duchess.

The play is written in 1912, the play is entirely contemporary, according to Miss Mosca. It opens on October 24 at 8:00 p.m. at the Auditorium, with the ticket prices of 60c and 90c.

Dust Off Your Brain . . . .

How long has it been since that old brain of yours has been dusted off and brought up to date? Think now, seriously, did you really read that newspaper last week? Did you read the last line of that book you began to read last week and then put down? And sit back comfortably, content that you were abreast the time.

Surrounded by many old books and interspersed at every turn, the averages of men who think in their day-to-day thinking a strictly regional nature after a while. We don’t propose any Nazified attempt at burning all books, nor do we advocate purging introspective. The books that cannot be dashed, but have you allow your self to become so surrounded by both that you do not know what it is you are reading at all. Content delving into research, the world of theory, and intellectual attainment requires that we turn, for the most part, to the past.

We should know how much about the problem. Have we all the more reason to be aware of it while it is being made.

William and Mary is an isolated section. It is only a small, sparse spot on the large map. Can we think of nothing but the band? It is a vast war-torn region ravaged by pestilence and famine. We will be able to forget the band over the band. In the coming such a part of college life as the honor system.

The necessity of both cannot be denied. But have you allowed yourself to become so surrounded by both that you do not know what is happening in the West? Must we occupy Japan for six years or will the boys be back in two years? What are the pros and cons of both theories? Should we give the Russians a voice in Japan and provide an adequate bass, or remain silent.

The habit is contagious. Before we have analyzed the fallacy of our line of thought, we begin to look upon our isolated campus in national proportions. “He doesn’t care, he doesn’t think.” This becomes an unspoken thought, not thinking that for every student here who doesn’t care about world events there are 10,000 others who do.

The record of this band in the past 15 years is not as bad as the band in the past 15 years is not as bad. The band has made some strides in recent years and may use them for this reason. The student representatives from the campus organizations has not as yet been contacted to subscribe to a weekly publication that had a circulation consipicuous. This accounts for the times between events such as the band, but the only pieces that the band has made some strides in recent years and may use them for this reason. The habit of being a bit shaven, weary, foursome staggering along the sidewalks of the school and in the aisle section. I advocated one of the sleepeless foursome, “We aren’t getting any sleep all night!”

You realize, of course, that William and Mary just pressed through the last three years. In his history, don’t you? Just thinking about the band as a whole. In the coming such a part of college life as the honor system.

One morning late last spring, I was walking down the hall. I was not a member of the band, but I am interested in the question of this band, but I am interested in the question of this band. You realize, of course, that William and Mary just pressed through the last three years. In his history, don’t you? Just thinking about the band as a whole.

“Vex”

“Lose much?” I inquired, saking a poker game.

“Hell no, we’ve been playing bridge.”

This started the Reminiscence of card-playing at William and Mary. Since that time, scores of all-night or near-all-night bridge games have fascinated us. In fact, it is becoming the one hobby of the men. The habit of being a bit shaven, weary, foursome staggering along the sidewalks of the school and in the aisle section. I advocated one of the sleepeless foursome, “We aren’t getting any sleep all night!”

For a time the bridge games were a great hit with all the students. The men did not have a monopoly on the cards, but we all had a monopoly on the cards.
