Archaeologist Writes Books About Olynthos

Dr. David Robinson Holds Professorship At Hopkins

Dr. David Robinson, professor of archaeology and epigraphy at Johns Hopkins University, lectured on Greek and Greek Literature and authored at least 22 books and had some 400 articles, became interested in Geometric pottery and the context of excavations of Olynthos while he was studying from 1901 to 1903, at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece.

The excavation of Olynthos, which Dr. Robinson began in 1923, has yielded valuable finds from the city in the Chalcidice, known in the early fourth century B.C., by its headship of the Chalkidic Maritime League and by its position as a base for a number of the sea of Greece. Olynthos, completely destroyed by Philip of Macedon in 162 B.C., revives in the only Greek city of the fourth and fifth centuries B.C., which has been found through excavation to have well preserved blocks of houses and streets. As knowledge gained from the discovered city plus house is filled a gap in domestic life of the period before.

Early Rushing
... is Popular Opinion

For some time during the past two years there has been much discussion concerning the advances and dangers of deferred rushing for girls. The November rushing program has been in effect on this campus for the past three years. After experimenting with this plan without the general opinion of the sororities in mind, it was found that a good practice in theory, it does not work well in actual practice.

In the first place it has a demoralizing effect on both members and nonmembers. The constant tension from September to November keeps everyone from settling down to college work and making a good start in her classes. The rushing period is invariably marked by longer assignments and tests for all students. At this time arush needs to concentrate on her work, her attention is diverted into other channels.

Secondly, the importance of sororities becomes overemphasized. At the beginning of the year the newness of the college schedule over­shadows the rumor the actual facts that lie behind it.

At present there are thousands of college students with sororities in general and their part in college life. Educational program during the Orientation Week to acquaint the new women students. For the most part they are sud­denly and Morale.

As the period before and during rushing lengths, a sorority becomes of greater importance in the minds of some girls. This leads to keener disappointment among the girls who do not pledge.

A third argument supporting early rushing is the help a sorority can give in an immediate satisfactory adjustment to college life. It helps promote cooperation, participation in extra-curricular activities, and maintenance of high scholarship as an initiation requirement.

On the other hand it is contended that the student does not have the chance to settle down at college and become adapted to college life, study habits, and class work. Then, too, following the issuance of mid-term grades the sorority has an indication of a girl's scholastic work and an average has been maintained as a prerequisite for pledging. September rushing would eliminate such a requirement, but scholarship standards have to be met by each member.

One disadvantage of early rushing is the lack of knowledge most in­coming girls have about sororities. For the most part they are not de­cidedly interested, nor are they knowledgeable of the activities which are pursuing to them. To counteract such action, it would be advisable to have a Post-Hallie; educational programs during the Orientation Week. As the new students with sororities in general and their part in college life.

New Committee
... Exposes Rumors

The chief conversations on campus for the past few years have been in the form of rumors. Wrangling and discussion goes on indefinitely, but with little or no definite facts. As the rushing period is in round of activities which are pursuing to them. To counteract such action, it would be advisable to have a Post-Hallie; educational programs during the Orientation Week. As the new students with sororities in general and their part in college life.

The chief function of this committee is to assert any and communi­cate all facts which may appertain to the welfare and interest of the women student body. All communications are to be directed to the correct source. They will learn and announce to any concerned with the rumor the actual facts that lie behind it.

Strong Attack On Iwo
Evokes Much Criticism

BY MARYLOU MANNING

The bloody battle for Iwo Island is not yet over; but already criti­cisms of the corps and of the Navy for attacking so strongly a defended and garrisoned post are being voiced. Most of the criticism, evolved by the large casualty list and the terrific nature of the fighting has, in some instances, less effect.

For all of these reasons then, the-rounding given by air and sea had bad effect on our spirits. Some boys accepted this fact as inevitable -and carried out their job in the way only Americans can do. We proved that whatever the Japs or any one else has to offer, they have one thing better to give in return.

The taking of Iwo should teach three important lessons. It has served as a concrete blueprint of what must be faced by the Armed forces before Tokyo is in our hands. It has served as a concrete blueprint of what must be faced by the Armed forces before Tokyo is in our hands. It has served as a concrete blueprint of what must be faced by the Armed forces before Tokyo is in our hands.
